LANDLORDS EVICTING TENANTS

Property Owners, Halted in Profiteering, Resort to New Game

Halted in their bold-faced profiteering by the simple method of raising rents, the money-hungry landlords and real estate manipulators of the Back Bay, Brookline and the nearer suburbs are trying a new way of squeezing exorbitant sums from the public.

The Commission on the Necessaries of Life has discovered that instead of notifying tenants of rent increases, many landlords are ordering the tenants out, with the idea of reletting the apartments at greatly increased prices.

Many cases of this kind have come to the notice of the commission, and as a result the commission is establishing the precedent established in New York with success, that no tenant shall be evicted until he or she shall have found another apartment.

In cases where the landlords and

Commission Guards Tenant's Rights

Tenants notified to vacate by profiteering landlords are not required to vacate until they have secured suitable quarters to which to live, according to the Commission on the Necessaries of Life.

This decision is based on the New York precedent, in which a judge ruled a tenant did not have to vacate until suitable quarters could be obtained.

The tenant can remain in his apartment until such time as the rent formerly charged and the landlord cannot raise the rent until after the tenant vacates.

SYMPHONY MEN MAY STRIKE

Wrecking of Orchestra Threatened by "War" Over Members Joining Union

Concertmaster Frederick Fradkin of the Boston Symphony Orchestra today announced he would not renew his contract unless the trustees accorded recognition of the union demanded by the players.

Other players said they would refuse to go on with the concerts unless Conductor Pierre Monteux apologized to Mr. Fradkin for ejecting him from the dressing room at Sanders Theatre, Cambridge.

Arthur Berenson, counsel for the musicians, today said that the committee representing the men is preparing a wage scale for presentation to the management of the orchestra.

CASHIER ACCUSES POLICE

Charged That Patrolmen Committed Assault With Loaded Revolvers in Restaurant

Joshua McClain and James E. Monteir, colored policemen attached to the Dudley street station, were arraigned in the Roxbury Court today, charged with assault with loaded revolvers on Henry Foo, cashier of the King Tong Lo restaurant at No. 793 Tremont street.

The police made a previous charge of the same sort against Foo, and both cases were continued to March 11, after all had pleaded not guilty.

The police refused to discuss the matter other than to say that the court proceedings resulted from trouble at the restaurant on the night of February 21. They admitted that no arrest was made at the time, a summons for Foo being secured several days later.

Former Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell, counsel for Foo, then sought summonser for the two patrolmen.

According to information obtained by the American, the policemen went

GIRL WAITS TO MARRY SLAYER

Declares She Will Wed Sammarco If He Ever Gets Out of Prison

Declaring her unshakable faith in her sweetheart Joseph Sammarco, convicted murderer of Patrolman William G. Clancey, Rose Paladino declared today she would remain loyal, no matter how long the wait might be.

The young woman also expressed confidence in the eventual release of Sammarco, at which time, she said, brokenly, they would become man and wife.

Sammarco was convicted of murder in the second degree, and the penalty, which is life imprisonment, will be imposed by Judge John F. Brown, who presided at the trial, probably Monday.

"I will wait for Joe no matter how long that may be," said Miss Paladino between sobs. "I will await the day when we can go to the altar and be pronounced man and wife. I'll just stay here with my folks and do the housework and hope and pray for the time of Joe's deliverance. He never intended to kill the policeman. Surely he cannot be kept behind prison bars for life." The girl said she had been Sammarco's sweetheart for four years.

The original charter of the railroad granted by the state, provides for a two cent a mile passenger rate.

Can't Get Ring Back; Will Take $3,000

MOLLIE GRAY, OF PROVIDENCE.

LOVE CUT OFF; ASKS $53,000

Mollie Gray, Providence Dancer, Sues Parents of James W. Greaves, Jr.

Providence, March 5.—Three heart balm suits for a total of $53,000 were started today by Mollie Gray, society dancer, against "Young Jim" Greaves, millionaire mill owner's son, and his mother, Mrs. James W. Greaves.

Miss Gray is one of the prettiest and most popular of exhibition dancers. James W. Greaves, Jr., is twenty-one, and a leader in Rhode Island's younger set.

Miss Gray seeks $25,000 from Greaves for breach of promise, and $25,000 from his mother for alienation of his affections. The third suit, for $5,000, involves an engagement ring said to be in Mrs. Greaves' possession.

Snobbishness on the part of his mother was directly responsible for the refusal of the young man to keep his word and marry the dancer, according to Joseph W. Grimes, lawyer for the girl.

Mrs. Greaves is alleged to have informed Miss Gray of the breaking of the engagement over the telephone, saying, "You will not get the engagement ring back. We have decided you are not a proper person to enter our set."

The dancer and the mill owner's son met months ago at Churchill House, a rendezvous of society. Love at first sight resulted, according to the plaintiff, although she was present as an entertainer, and young Greaves as a guest.

Following a rapid courtship she alleges that he asked her to marry him. She withheld her answer until she had been introduced into his family. Her first meeting with Mrs. Greaves was a happy one, according to the girl. The mother said, "I am glad that young Jim has at last picked out a sensible little girl like you."

TREATY IS PUT UP TO WILSON

Democratic Leaders Ask for Definite Statement From President on Ratification

Washington, March 5.—President Wilson was asked to pass final judgment on the treaty situation in the Senate in a letter which Senator Hitchcock, the administration leader, sent to the White House today.

The President was requested to grant an audience to Senator Simmons, Democrat, of North Carolina, spokesman for the administration forces.

The selection of Simmons, an old and influential member of the Senate, who favors immediate ratification and objects to the treaty being made a campaign issue, was regarded as significant.

Simmons said he was waiting word from the White House as to when the President might desire to receive him.

Simmons said he had a "concrete proposition" to submit to the President, if being the desire of the Democratic side to know from the President whether he was still unyielding in his original determination to "pocket" the treaty unless the Lodge reservations involving Article X and the Monroe Doctrine were modified.

Hitchcock was making the arrangements for Simmons' expected visit to the President, it was stated.

Solomon's Procedure Fails Judge Murray

"I know now how Solomon must have felt," declared Municipal Judge Michael J. Murray from the bench today as he was trying to decide which of two women was the rightful owner of a French poodle.

He offered to settle the dispute by having the animal killed. One woman made a tearful plea for the poodle's life. The other's principal objection—and she has possession of the dog—was that such an act would make her two children sick.

Mrs. May Seigel of No. 51 Allen street applied to the court for a warrant against Mrs. Ida Polack of No. 1 Allen street. Mrs. Polack has the dog which Mrs. Seigel claimed belonged to her. The dog is four years old.

Judge Murray had the women take opposite sides of the courtroom and ordered that the dog be let in. He then instructed each claimant to call him. The dog ran frantically from one to the other, apparently unable to decide which was his mistress. The jurist acknowledged that his scheme only added to the dilemma.

Practically all of lower Allen street attended the trial. A dozen witnesses had been called by each side. Mrs. Polack produced snapshots taken of the canine when a pup, but they were of little assistance to the court, as the dog has no distinguishing marks.

The court admitted the hopelessness of the situation and declined to issue the warrant that Mrs. Seigel sought. She was advised to seek redress in a civil suit.

TWO FORCED OFF MAYOR'S BOARD

Publicity Director and An Investigator Leave New Americanization Commission

Joseph J. Clancy, publicity director, and William J. Delaney, investigator and former striking policeman, were dropped from the Mayor's Committee for Americanism today. Their action followed the refusal of the Civil Service Commission to approve further payments to them based upon a decision by Attorney-General J. Weston Allen that their appointment by Mayor Peters did not conform to civil service regulations.

About $600 of the $15,000 appropriation for this committee has been spent. Clancy drew $246.54, Delaney $134.28 and James H. Brennan, executive secretary, resigned, $99.33.

110 CITIES AND TOWNS IN BAY STATE VOTED TO LICENSE SALOON

The recent elections throughout Massachusetts indicate that the cities and towns of the State are against absolute prohibition.

Thirty-seven cities voted wet as against one voting dry, while of the towns seventy-three voted "yes" against seventy which voted "no" and two were tied. This is particularly significant in the votes of the towns, as they voted "no" almost unanimously a year ago.

Melrose sustained the banner of bone-dryness, voting "no" by 468, yet even this prohibition stronghold showed a marked falling off from the vote of last year. Then the vote for dry was 811 as against 218 proponents of wet.

DEAD HEAT IN NEW ASHFORD.

The shifts in the voting of the towns extended to even the smallest of hamlets. New Ashford, which went dry a year ago by three votes, found itself with a dead heat on its hands this year, seven citizens voting for beer and seven against. There was one recreant citizen, the fifteen voted a year ago and but fourteen this year. He might have been the controlling power one way or the other.

The town of Greenwich went "No" again, sustaining past records, but the figures hint at something worse than beer in that hamlet. The vote was seven and eleven, mystic symbols of African golf.

Granby was one of the very few towns in the State which lost wet votes during the year. A year ago sixteen sturdy citizens voted "wet," this year but two dared scorn the eagle eye of uplift. But by the same token the "drys" lost twenty-two votes, which shows they're moving out of Granby.

BROOKLINE BIG SURPRISE.

Such representative residential towns as Dedham, Franklin and Stoneham are particularly indicative of the trend of public opinion.

A year ago Dedham voted "No" by 310 votes. This year it went "yes" by 141. A year ago Franklin voted "no" by 69 votes. This year it voted "yes" by 221. A year ago Stoneham voted "no" by 275 votes. This year it voted "yes" by 336.

The biggest surprise in Greater Boston was the now well-known overturn of Brookline, which town went "wet" for the first time in 24 years. Other towns near Boston which changed from "dry" to "wet" in their vote were Arlington, Framingham, Wakefield, Lexington, Braintree and Watertown.

Some of the towns, through mistake, failed to vote on license. The town clerk of Eastham sent in this explanation: "We considered it would be unconstitutional because of the national prohibition law."

The other towns doubtlessly were prompted by the same belief. The Secretary of State's office says the matter should have been voted on.

Citizens of the towns could arrange for special town meetings to take action, but this probably will not be done, as there seems to be no demand for it. Towns which have informed the secretary that no vote was taken are Eastham, Wellfleet, Rockport, Dartmouth, New Salem, Oakham, Acushnet and Belmont.

The vote in cities and towns and the vote of a year ago follows. The vote in the cities were taken during the last of 1919, the vote in the towns in 1920.

Cardinal Gibbons Favors Beer and Light Wines

New Orleans, March 5.—The key to the prohibition problem in the United States is held by Congress, which also possesses power to allay the discontent incident to its enforcement, Cardinal Gibbons declared here.

"If Congress were to place a liberal interpretation upon the question as to what constitutes an intoxicating beverage," said the Cardinal, "such as would permit the manufacture and sale of beer and light wines, and yet maintain the spirit of the prohibition act, much would be accomplished toward solving a problem now becoming acute and destined to become more and more a basis for unrest in America."

Referring to the duty of foreigners who come to America to make their home, Cardinal Gibbons declared: "They must not come as dictators, but as future citizens."

STRIKE THREAT IN SYMPHONY

Fradkin Says He Will Not Renew Contract Unless Trustees Recognize Union

as soon as the men receive recognition of their union.

The final wrecking of this famous musical organization was threatened as the result of these two latest developments of the war between the players and trustees over the players' right to unionize.

The ejection incident took place at one of the monthly concerts which the orchestra gives every season in Cambridge, and is said by players to be a direct result of Mr. Fradkin's action in siding with the men and joining their union.

SAYS HE'S INSULTED.

Mr. Fradkin today characterized Mr. Monteux's action as "a direct insult" to himself and the other players, but said that it was a personal matter and he would deal with it himself. Mr. Monteux declared that the matter was "personal between him and Mr. Fradkin," and denied that any insult to the players was intended.

"It makes no difference to me whether the men are organized into a union or not," said he. "What I want is good musicians."

Mr. Fradkin gave an account of the Sanders Theatre incident which for a time threatened to prevent the Cambridge concert. The men at first declared that they would not go on until Mr. Monteux had apologized, but were persuaded by Mr. Fradkin and other union leaders not to disappoint the audience.

According to Mr. Fradkin, when he went to the dressing room, which it has been customary for the leader to share with the concert master, he was told by Mr. Monteux: "This is the management's side." Asked whether he meant that Mr. Fradkin was to go out, he replied, according to the violinist, "Yes."

50 OUT OF 90 IN UNION.

Mr. Fradkin thereupon went into the general dressing room.

"Unless the musicians' union is recognized it will mean the breaking up of the orchestra, Mr. Fradkin said.

"Eighty out of the ninety men are now union members," he continued, "if players leave the orchestra they cannot be replaced. The trustees say they will import men from Europe, but they cannot get them. There is a great dearth of good musicians.

"It has been the custom to ask players to mention the names of good musicians whom they know. I myself put in the names of two New York players who were rejected by the management because they were union members. They were offered good pay if they would sever their affiliations with the union, but they refused.

"We are not waving the red flag in the orchestra—the public must not get that idea. The men have found that this is their only means to get decent working conditions. When we have a request we must make it to a representative of the trustees; why should they not send their communications to us through our representative? Judge Cabot may know how to run a board of trustees, but he does not know how to run musicians."

RESPECTS MONTEUX' WORK.

Criticising Mr. Monteux' stand of "neutrality," Mr. Fradkin said: "On this question he should not be neutral. The situation requires a definite stand. We take it by his stand that he is against us."

The concert master denied that there had been any personal differences between him and the leader before the Sanders Theatre incident. He said that their relations had always been harmonious, and that he had "great respect" for Mr. Monteux as a musician.

SHOE MACHINERY MEN STRIKE

members of the machinists workmen who have not been scheduled on the walkout list and also the members of the Metal Trades' Union employed by the company.

Union officials declare that over 5,000 of the 8,200 people employed by the United Shoe Machinery Company are unionized. The company says that only 2,000 men have gone out on strike, while the unions say 2,900.

STATEMENTS BY COMPANY.

The following statement issued by the company outlines the position they will take regarding the strike and the plan at which the strike is aimed:

"The employes who have seen fit to leave their work today have done so because they insist on the corporation ceasing to sign up persons who desire to enter into an individual contract with them. It is and has been optional with anyone whether they become a party to such agreement, or not, or whether the privilege has been extended, and the fact that one has it been the cause of anyone losing standing who has refused not to become a party to the contract.

"Given this choice apparently is objectionable to some, to such an extent that they are attempting to coerce the corporation into abandoning its policy which they consider sound and equitable.

"It is the intention of the corporation to have at such contracts respected and to give full protection to all persons having such contracts with them, and all others also not having a contract with the corporation who are desirous peacefully following their respective callings.

"It is the intention to run the factory as usual with the least possible inconvenience to anyone, and it behooves all loyal and appreciative employes to continue their work and do their utmost to assist in carrying out this intention.

DEFENDS CONTRACT SYSTEM.

"We cannot at this time more clearly define our position than to repeat the recent public announcement relative to this contract, that individual contract being put out by us is legal and must be respected by all. Persons having such a contract with us can rest assured that their rights will be fully protected. Any attempt by a third party to interfere will be dealt with according to law."

Tonight members of local 245, Machinists' Union, which launched the strike, will hold a meeting at their headquarters, No. 175 Essex street, Salem.

Several hundred night workers have not as yet been tallied by the union, and these will be among the members to assemble tonight. What action will be taken by the strikers is not known, and will not be divulged by the union leaders.

Union leaders, however, declared that the Metal Trades Union members, who are not yet out, will join the strike and tie up the works of the company.

"The union has sent out its pickets, and the town has assigned policemen to see that order is preserved.

Police Patrol Leather Shop During Strike

Police of Woburn and Winchester today patrol the vicinity of the Beggs & Cobb patent leather shop on Cross street, Woburn, following the importation of forty workmen from Boston. Today the 125 strikers, who have been out three weeks, were picketing the vicinity of the factory. The strikers have been receiving 4½ cents a side of leather and demanded 6½ cents. This included the finishers, the dauberd and pasters. Their wages averaged from $25 to $50 per week.

Because of the strike the tannery has been forced to lay off 200 men.

Today it was rumored that by the end of the week all the tanneries and the patent leather shops in town will be forced to shut down, on account of the money market. Great Britain, it was explained, has been refusing to export any more leather to this country.

BURKE MUST BE TRIED AGAIN SAYS STURGIS

Augusta, Me., March 5.—Attorney-General Sturgis of Maine today silenced all rumors that John A. Burke would not be tried for murder again after the jury's disagreement following his trial for the death of Nelson W. Bartley. "So far as I know," said Sturgis, "Burke will be tried again. I have never felt that the financial side should prevent the establishment of a man's innocence or guilt to the satisfaction of all. This can only be done in Burke's case by another trial and a verdict."

It was ordered closed.

WOMEN TO FIGHT MEN IN WORLD'S GREATEST WAR, SAYS FRENCHMAN

POLYGAMY WOULD FORESTALL STRIFE, HE DECLARES

By International News Service.

Paris, March 5.—"The world's greatest and bloodiest war will be fought between armies of men and women," was the sensational prediction made today by Edouard Pontie, well-known French writer and bitter opponent of woman suffrage.

"The army of Amazons will have superior numbers over the army of men," continued M. Pontie. "Women are eager to reverse the long ages of submission to man, and it is possible they may conquer.

"I believe that the only way to forestall this struggle is by legalizing polygamy, thus reducing the numbers of unmarried women. But polygamy is not practicable unless the high cost of living is reduced. A man cannot afford more than one wife at present.

"France is not the only nation possessing an excess of women over men. The same regrettable disproportion is found throughout nearly the whole of Europe.

"The apostles of feminism say that the problem will be solved by opening all avenues of work to women so that all can become self-supporting and have no need for husbands. Perhaps this is true, but when that condition of affairs arrives we shall no longer have the two sexes living in harmony.

"As the world population increases, competition for bread will become more bitter between those wearing trousers and those wearing skirts. Then will come the frightful war wherein women will become brutalised and use all their force and artifices to overcome men.

"Polygamy is repugnant to civilized nations and, anyhow, it is impracticable now with women preferring pearls, furs and silk lingerie to meats and vegetables.

"It is manifest, however, that bigamy is becoming more and more common. Reports from the United States and France show this to be true."

'Sex Antagonism' Doesn't Exist, Says Mrs. Blackwell

"Sex antagonism? It doesn't exist as a suffrage issue. Men and women have always liked each other very much, as far as I have observed."

Miss Alice Stone Blackwell, answering the charge made by Edouard Pontie, well-known French author and bitter opponent of suffrage, who declared that "the world's greatest and bloodiest war will be fought between the armies of men and women," denied emphatically that such an issue had entered into the suffrage question in America.

"Our struggle for equal rights has never been a question of men against women, but of conservative men and women against progressive men and women," Miss Blackwell stated. "Suffrage is not so much a women's movement as a progressive movement with women taking a leading part."

MEN HELP SUFFRAGE.

Answering the sensational prediction of M. Pontie that "an Amazonian army of women, eager to revenge their long ages of subjection, will rise up and conquer," Miss Blackwell stated:

"Women have not fought men; they have fought injustice. Always, there have been men on our side to help our cause, and they have brought their wisdom and experience to bear upon our problems. We could not have gained our victory so completely, in comparatively few years, without this co-operation.

"Equal rights, far from emphasizing any feeling of sex antagonism, have actually brought men and women closer together, in a more comradely and normal way. In the States where suffrage for women has been established, the men and women are working side by side, in closer and more friendly co-operation, to bring about political and industrial justice."

The object of M. Pontie, Miss Blackwell declared, is to forestall the impending sex struggle was to legalize polygamy and reduce the number of unmarried women, was emphatically denied.

"Polygamy would be no solution," said Miss Blackwell, "even if this condition existed. Polygamy would not lessen antagonism, but would promote it. A normal woman would not thank her husband for having all or nearly all the money, besides herself; such a condition would create hostility, and be destructive to every force of comradeship.

"The women of America will never be called upon to attempt this solution. Our relations with men have always been more normal and intelligent than in countries where standards are not as high. The true basis of friendship between men and women is in operation for a common cause of justice."

U. S. MEN DIFFERENT.

Mrs. True Worthy White, prominent in the Massachusetts State Federation of Women, declared that the problem of sex antagonism was not pertinent to American conditions.

"Our women, particularly our working girls, have never been forced to fight for industrial and economic rights, as the women of France and England," said Mrs. White. "For this reason the so-called element of sex antagonism does not exist for the average woman.

"Equal rights, far from emphasizing any feeling of sex antagonism, have actually brought men and women closer together, in a more comradely and normal way. In the States where suffrage for women has been established, the men and women are working side by side, in closer and more friendly co-operation, to bring about political and industrial justice."

Mrs. Beatrice F. R. Hale Sues for Divorce

Mrs. Beatrice Forbes-Robertson Hale, actress and suffragette, who has brought a divorce action against her husband, Swinburn Hale, a prominent New York attorney. Photograph copyright by Underwood & Underwood.

Mrs. Beatrice Forbes-Robertson Hale, actress, suffragette and mother of the "September Morn" twins of Scituate fame, is suing her husband, Swinburn Hale, prominent New York attorney for divorce. Her husband was formerly a captain on the intelligence department of the general staff of the army.

Mrs. Hale is the niece of Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson, the English actor. At times she has occasioned considerable comment on account of her radical views concerning suffrage and styles in women's dress. She has been an outspoken opponent of high-heeled shoes.

Her actions in allowing her two-year-old twins, Clemency and Rosemary, to bathe at Scituate beach in the nude, despite the protests of some of the summer visitors, brought her views into the public print in 1915.

Mrs. Hale declared then that there is "no harm in modesty on the sphere." Mrs. Peter F. Tague, wife of the Charlestown Councilman, had threatened to appeal to the police unless the former actress put bathing suits on the twins before allowing them to enter the water.

A lively discussion followed as to the morality or lack of morality involved, but Mrs. Hale won out. Chief of Police Turner of Scituate refused to act.

The Hales were married in the Church of the Ascension at New York in 1910. Previous to that Mrs. Hale had starred in England and this country with her uncle, Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson and Sir Beerbohm Tree. Details connected with the suit are being withheld by the attorneys on both sides.

Beware of Wet Feet, Warns Woodward

Health Commissioner Woodward today warned Boston to be particularly careful of wet feet at this time, first because the conditions of the streets are conducive to wet feet, and the same causes that threaten tuberculosis and influenze hold out the fear of cerebro spinal fever.

"While New York may have conditions that threaten an epidemic of cerebro spinal fever, I do not think that we are so threatened in Boston," said the commissioner. "However, everybody must be careful of wet feet, for these produce conditions favoring the cerebro spinal fever germ. This, too, is the period when former epidemics have started, especially that of 1905 in Boston. Medical authorities are agreed that Winter and early Spring are the seasons for the disease."

The records at City Hall showed no increase of cerebro spinal fever over last year. From the first of 1920 up to last Saturday there were sixteen cases of the disease, five resulting fatalities. A year ago for the same period there were twenty-two cases, twelve of them resulting fatally.

The symptoms of the disease—and incidentally if one wishes to get on familiar terms with it, it may be called Diplococcus Intracellularis Meningetibis—are the suddenness with which it attacks a person apparently in full health; vomiting, falling in the street, and pallor, and convulsions in children.

BOSTON WOMAN IN N. Y. EXPOSE

May Be Witness in Cases Charging Police in Protecting Disorderly Houses

By International News Service.

New York, March 5.—Further startling revelations in New York's police scandal were made today when Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith announced he had evidence to show that at least 500 disorderly houses are being operated under police protection in the district just west of Broadway from Forty-second street to One Hundred and Ninth street.

Three inspection districts of the police department are involved, Smith said, although witnesses held thus far are concerned principally with alleged graft and bribery in the fourth or old tenderloin inspection district.

Smith announced that the case against Detective John J. Gunson, indicted on charges of graft and accepting bribes, was strengthened and that other policemen charged with forcing women of the streets to share their earnings with them would be indicted next week.

Not in many years have women openly accused an officer as did Rebecca Prado, on whose testimony Gunson was indicted. Her story of living with Gunson, a man with a wife and child; of showering him with gifts or more than $6,000; of giving him huge sums of money and dividing her illicit profits with him daily; of refusing to go to London with him to continue her vocation there, and of his persecution of her when she tried to reform, makes a new chapter in the annals of New York crime.

"At least 500 houses are being operated in the West Side district," said Smith, "and this is a conservative estimate. Each of these places has been paying monthly 'fees' to the police of from $50 to $500, and in some cases more."

WITNESS IN BOSTON.

Two more women were being held as material witnesses in the case today and another was expected to be brought here from Boston.

Smith turned his attention today to an investigation of bonds said to be operated in fashionable West End avenue, Central Park West and Riverside Drive, controlled by the wealthy and declared to pay thousands of dollars monthly for protection.

OPENING OF TROLLEY LINE IS LEFT TO SUN

Sun and rain will have to open the many miles of track of the Lexington branch of the Middlesex Street Railway, which have been buried under ice and snow for more than a month. The road has given up further attempts at opening up the blockaded line and will bend all efforts to keep open what little mileage is now being operated. This became known officially today on the signing off of ten motormen and conductors for an indefinite period.

Officer Ryan testified that he saw Popkin and a companion take a number of ties from a store counter and conceal them beneath their coats. Popkin was held in $100 for a hearing March 12. The companion escaped.

TESTIFIES FOR MRS. NELSON

Roland G. Munroe Tells of 'Red Light' Trip With Her Husband in Cuba

Roland G. Munroe, former cadet on the U. S. S. Mexico, and star witness for Mrs. Eva Guptill Nelson, gave further details today at East Cambridge of the now famous tour of Havana "red light" district in which Mrs. Kirsten Nelson participated.

Munroe, testifying in behalf of Mrs. Nelson, who filed a counter suit charging her husband with infidelity, declared that Nelson paid all the expenses of both men on this occasion.

The witness, whose home is in Warsaw, Indiana, was a graduate of the Harvard Radio School and a fellow-cadet with Nelson on the U. S. S. Mexico. He told of visiting Cuban beer with Bicardi rum, and admitted that he felt happy, but was not drunk.

John M. Burrill, New York broker, also described the Havana "red light" district again-seeing episode.

In answer to questions by Attorney Henry F. Hurlburt in cross-examination, Burrill admitted that all the members of the party were intoxicated at the time. He said, of mixing Cuban beer and Bicardi rum, Roland G. Munroe accused a woman of stealing $15 from the witness and the two went to the police station to enter a complaint.

"This was the second time you were in the police station," interjected Attorney Hurlburt.

"Yes, but this time we went in," returned the witness, emphasizing the verb.

The next day two Cuban policemen came on board the Mexico seeking the witness and Munroe to have them appear against the woman. "I withdrew the charge," said the witness. "I was indignant that so much had been made of the theft of a small sum of money, such as $25 or $30."

It was stated today that Mrs. Eva Guptill Nelson, resenting the charges of slackness and nymphomania made against her yesterday, would have her small daughter Nancy in court for the judge to see.

MAY COMMANDEER OIL FOR MERCHANT MARINE

Washington, March 5.—The President, by means of the war powers which he still retains under the Lever Act, may be compelled to commandeer a large part of the country's oil stocks in order to supply fuel for the American Merchant Marine.

Bids opened by the Shipping Board for a six-months supply of bunker oil are understood to have been generally unsatisfactory that they probably will be rejected. This will make the second rejection of oil bids within a month by the Shipping Board.

Patrolman Pets Skunk; You Know the Rest

A midnight marauder whose Winter habitat is a deep and cozy hole in the ground in the wild woods, invaded the South End last night and as a result Patrolman Frank G. Bird of the East Dedham street station is in the City Hospital and his clothes are on the roof of the station house.

Bird is a new policeman. It was lonesome on Appleton street in the wee hours of the morning. Bird saw a pretty kitty.

The old time First Reader used to say "C-A-T-cat. See the cat. See the kitty. See the cat run. See the pole."

Bird erred when he petted the animal. It turned on him figuratively and bit him in the finger, then turned on Bird's clothes and literally and showered him.

Frank was thrown out of Station 5 and had to fight his way into the City Hospital.

Superintendent Crowley said the frozen condition of the ground prevented proper burial of the dead uniform. The marauder is still at large, South End residents can testify. How he got loose and where he came from is a mystery.

BACK BAY MAID SLASHED

Attacked When She Refused to Go to Movies; Police Hunt Suspect

Agnes Logan, twenty-four, a domestic employed at the home of H. Gloucester Armstrong, British consul-general, No. 769 Beacon street, was stabbed four times and severely wounded by an assailant, Enraged because she persisted in going to church rather than to the movies, she says he drew a pocket knife and stabbed her. She tried to fight him off and the conflict which followed was stabbed again.

Finally, she broke free and fled from the alley back of the Armstrong house out into Berkeley street, screaming that she had been stabbed.

FLED UP BEACON STREET.

Patrick Coughlin, of No. 9 Marion street, and Francis Costello, of No. 118 Bunker Hill street, both of Charlestown, attracted by the girl's screams, rushed to her aid. She was assisted, weak from loss of blood, to the office of Dr. George W. Brewster, No. 212 Beacon street, where she was treated and later sent to the City Hospital.

Miss Logan's assailant, in the meantime, fled up Beacon street and disappeared. The girl says that he was under the influence of intoxicants when she met him at the Armstrong residence.

The finance committee cut the increase to $300 for a flat $300 for all grades, but at a later meeting reconsidered and approved the original figures.

John Hannan, a longshoreman, conducted his own defence and was convicted of assault upon Owen Moore, by a jury in Suffolk Superior Court. When ejected Hannan is said to have become abusive. Hannan was placed on probation.

ASKS $500 FOR EACH VETERAN

Head of Privates' Legion Calls for Immediate Passage of Bill

By International News Service.

Washington, March 5.—Issuance of a flat cash grant of $500 to veterans of the World War was advocated today by Marvin Gates Sperry, commander of the Private Soldiers and Sailors' Legion, before the House Ways and Means Committee considering soldier aid legislation.

Sperry scored the plan of the American Legion for granting aid according to the number of months of service.

"The boys who fought in the World War do not want their reward based on a so-much-a-day plan," he declared.

"The Private Soldiers and Sailors Legion is in favor of the Sherwood bill which grants the flat $500 bonus. Pass that bill and pass it promptly.

"Profiteers made $15,000,000,000 during the war, it would not hurt them to give up two billions of this for the soldiers who made it possible for them to make this money.

"Congress has been most unfair. The remittance of $400,000,000 of interest annually due on foreign obligations proves that the government is not weak financially."

ZURICH POLICE HUNT FOR BOMB PLOTTERS

Zurich, March 5.—The Swiss authorities are making a searching investigation into the attempt to blow up the United States consulate with a bomb on Wednesday night. Despite the large holes torn in the walls, Consul Doneghan continues to occupy the building. The bomb was powerful and evidently constructed by an expert in explosives.

N. Y. SOCIALISTS 'WITHIN LAW'

Opposition to War Was Legal, Declares Assemblymen's Counsel

Albany, N. Y., March 5.—Socialists opposed but did not obstruct the United States government's war on Germany and in their opposition were "within the law," Seymour Stedman of Chicago, member of the legal forces of the five Socialist assemblymen now contesting their right to seats in the State Assembly, declared today in summing up for the defence.

Stedman launched into a lengthy analysis of the laws of the land and differentiated between moral and legal obligation, to show that the Socialists admit having been guilty of violation of moral obligations to the country and its prosecution of the war but deny legal guilt;

"You are not expected under the law to do anything more than the law compels," summed up his definitions.

Mr. Stedman attacked the Assembly's method of procedure in asserting the suspension of the five Socialist assemblymen and denied there was precedent for its action.

"The nearest to a precedent," he said, "is an incident that happened in the Duma in Russia. Four or five members were charged with conspiracy. They were charged with having explosives and the intent to kill members of the royal family. They were prosecuted, convicted and then expelled. So we can see that an American assembly can borrow from the greatest tyrant of modern times a half baked precedent to pursue its intentions."

SUES PHYSICIAN FOR WIFE'S LOVE

Former Waiter Charges Helpmeet's Affections Were Alienated by Max Groppner

Peter Nolan, one-time waiter at the Boston City Club, has brought suit against Dr. Max Groppner, a Jamaica Plain physician, alleging the alienation of the affections of his wife, Mrs. Katherine Nolan, and charging that the doctor enticed her away to have her home and family to live with him at No. 1609 Columbus avenue.

Nolan states that Dr. Groppner, in a professional capacity, came to their home and that Mrs. Nolan, by his visits became frequent and that he persuaded her to stay at his apartment and serve as his office assistant. Dr. Groppner's wife was living at the time of the alleged affair with Jamaica Plain. After his wife's death in October, 1918, Dr. Groppner gave up his home and went to his apartment on Columbus avenue.

Nolan claims that his wife received many costly gifts from Dr. Groppner, including a valuable diamond ring, belonging to the physician's former wife, and a large touring car, now registered in her name. He says that during Dr. Groppner's life, the doctor spent several vacations with Mrs. Nolan at a small town on the Cape.

Dr. Groppner was born in Germany and studied medicine in Berlin.

Mrs. Nolan was, before her marriage, a stenographer in various office buildings around Boston. She has two children who are with their father at Norton.

HELD BY GRAND JURY ON ATTEMPT TO KILL CHARGE

Bruno Capano, arrested in Lynn on a warrant of four years' standing, was in the Chelsea District Court today, charged with assault and battery with intent to kill Michael Mapesali, and was ordered held in $1,000 bonds for the Grand Jury after entering a plea of not guilty. Capano admitted working for three years in the brickyard, where Majewski was crippled for life after an attack with an iron bar. He denied committing the act.

ENVOYS IN FEAR OF 'DROUGHT'

Supply Running Short, They Want Decision on Importation of Liquor

Washington, March 5.—Renewed pressure was brought upon the State Department to force a decision as to the right of foreign diplomats to import whiskey, wines and other liquors.

Diplomats are resentful that the issue should be delayed for alleged reasons of "secrecy."

Internal Revenue Commissioner Roper has neither issued any permits for the importation of liquor, nor rejected any applications. He "passed the buck" to the State Department, asking the department to decide the question.

Diplomats, facing diminishing "stocks" of wet goods in their cellars, contend their residences are "foreign territory" and in no sense are affected by the terms of the national prohibition law.

to the restaurant about 11:30 on the night of February 21, their day off. It is understood that McClain, who had visited the place on several occasions, was informed by a waitress that he would have to settle for a number of meals.

McClain is alleged to have gone to the cashier's cage and threatened Foo, drawing a revolver and flourishing it. Monteir is said to have joined his companion and produced a weapon.

PROPRIETOR RESTORES PEACE.

The American's informant said that the two officers commanded Foo to come out of the cage and that the Chinaman secured a revolver and refused to obey. The proprietor is said to have counseled his cashier to obey the policemen. Foo, it was stated, then came out of the cage and his revolver was taken from him by McClain.

The proprietor telephoned to the Roxbury Crossing police station, according to the story, and asked that an investigation be made.

A few days later a summons was secured by Captain Jeremiah F. Gallivan and Foo was arraigned.

Cold Wave Coming After Rainy Night

Weatherman Smith promises a medley of weather for the next twenty-four hours. The mild, sunny weather of the early afternoon will turn to cloudiness and rain, he says, then to change to snow and a cold wave. His official forecast reads:

"Friday rain, changing to snow. Saturday clearing, much colder, with cold wave. Strong south winds, shifting to west and southwest winds."

New York, March 5.—The weather bureau today posted northwest storm warnings along the Atlantic coast from Jacksonville, Fla., to Portsmouth, N. H. Heavy winds, kicking up big seas, are expected off the coast north of the Virginia Capes. All steamship lines were warned.

Snow, followed by northwest gales and low temperatures, is predicted for the eastern half of the country.

EVICT TENANTS TO RAISE RENTS

Landlords, Halted in Profiteering on Property, Resort to New Game

real estate jugglers refuse to follow this precedent, the commission announces that it stands ready to go into court and aid the tenant in securing justice.

COMMISSION TO GIVE AID.

There is, therefore, no necessity of any tenant, dispossessed by a profiteering landlord, accepting a writ of eviction without making a fight for common justice. The commissioner will take the case up with the landlord and the first step will be that of the New York precedent. Failing in this, the commission will back the tenant in the courts and try to have the New York precedent accepted there.

Of the many cases reported to the commission recently, a high percentage consists of cases where professional real estate speculators are trying to evict tenants, in order that they may announce a startling increase for new tenants. In the majority of cases these landlords refuse absolutely to give the tenants a lease of any kind, preferring to keep them tenants at will, in order to simplify eviction at some early future date when the manipulators decide to again increase the rents.

To cover their tracks in evicting tenants, the real estate sharks are resorting to all sorts of pretenses, and are doing their utmost in many cases to create discontent and draw complaints from the tenants. When complaints have been filed, they notify tenants that they are requested to quit, their frequent complaints being cited as the cause.

LETTER SENT TO TENANT.

Here is a sample of such a letter, actually received by a tenant in a Brighton apartment house:

"Dear Mr. ———:

"I have always endeavored, as far as it lay in my power, to make conditions as comfortable and pleasant as possible at No. 210 Chestnut Hill avenue. But I find among certain tenants there has been much dissatisfaction with my management. I have therefore decided to make some changes, and ask you to kindly vacate your apartment on or before April 30, 1920.

"I am sure that within sixty days you can and will find an apartment elsewhere that will be more satisfactory to you than the one you now occupy.

"Thanking you for past favors and wishing you success, sincerely yours,

In many cases the commission has found the property being juggled has been subject to several mortgages, plainly indicating that it is being used simply for speculation by profiteers.

BLAMES MOTHER-IN-LAW FOR BANDAGED HEAD

Agrippino Casacelo of Chelsea street, East Boston, charged with assault upon his wife, Angelina, and upon her mother, Marie Bardenti, explained to Judge Barnes today that his bandaged head was the result of too much mother-in-law. His wife, he said, had insisted upon his moving back to his home in the country. He objected on account of the cold weather. He said his mother-in-law then sided with the wife. There were objections and counter objections. His case was continued to March 12.

DISCHARGE LONG ISLAND INFLUENZA VICTIMS

Eleven influenza patients were discharged from the Long Island Hospital today. One new case was recorded, that of a man of eighty, who was in the almshouse. There are still thirty-one patients at the hospital, fifteen men and sixteen women. The condition of Miss Agnes J. Enger, the nurse who is suffering with pneumonia, is without change. Five victims were buried today in Long Island cemetery.

80 Per Cent. Drop in Crime Convictions

Prohibition, probation and the abnormal industrial conditions have greatly depleted the population of penal institutions, reducing commitments by about 80 per cent., Penal Institutions Commissioner Thomas C. O'Brien told a gathering of Cobb, Balos & Yerxa employes at the Hotel Essex.

"Since January 1 there have have been only 62 commitments to Deer Island as compared to 429 the year before. The average rate for the past two months has been one a day. Charles Street Jail has only 147 inmates, including those waiting trial. Prohibition is responsible for 30 per cent. of the decrease and probation of offenders and the abnormal industrial situation for the remainder. Any man who wants to work can get a job."

DENY LIQUOR IN TRIPLE TRAGEDY

Brockton Witnesses Declare Driver of Death Car Was Sober

Brockton, March 5.—Testimony offered here today by two men and a woman at the trial of Walter N. Chesaman, charged with manslaughter in three counts, was contradictory to that offered yesterday by Chief of Police Daniel Ryan. Ryan attempted to introduce the fact that Chesaman, driver of the "death car," had been drinking.

George Ellis testified that he was the first on the scene of the tragedy and that he picked up the three bodies.

Ellis said he had looked over the car and its occupants and was not impressed that there was liquor involved in the accident. Ryan yesterday testified that Chesaman had told him he had been to Nantasket and had a few drinks.

William L. Sloane and his wife followed. Sloane declared he saw no indication of liquor on the driver of the "death car." His wife testified the same.

Other witnesses were: Mrs. Bennie A. Taft, mother of Irving Taft, one of the victims of the accident, and Mrs. Stella Ferry, sister of Hazel Pollard, another victim.

"Pound of Molasses" May Come Soon

"A pound of molasses, please."

Or, "A half-pound of maple syrup."

They will soon be sold by weight, instead of by quarts and pints, if Governor Coolidge signs the bill which has passed both branches of the Legislature.

The bill says that molasses, syrups, "and other viscous articles," shall be sold by weight "in lieu of liquid measures." It was introduced by Frank Whittaker, New Bedford sealer of weights and measures, and will become effective, if the Governor signs it, 30 days from the date of approval.

WOOD OPENS IN N.H. TOMORROW

Already Claiming State's Eight Delegates in Presidential Preferential Primary

By International News Service.

Washington, March 5.—Tomorrow General Leonard Wood will invade New Hampshire for the purpose of capturing the Republican delegation to be selected next Tuesday in the first presidential preference primary.

From that date until June the battle of the primaries will rage with a fury not seen in this country since the days of reconstruction, when parties, candidates and issues were scrambled as they now are almost beyond recognition.

In New Hampshire the contest will not be exciting. Colonel Proctor and other Wood champions are claiming the eight delegates, but a week from Tuesday in North Dakota and on March 23 in South Dakota will be staged political fights remindful of other days.

Wood has already stumped that part of the country, and Senator Johnson is there now. Senator Poindexter is on his way on an itinerary which will last three weeks. He will meet General Wood in debate March 29.

On April 5 Michigan will hold a preferential primary, the lists for which are now closed, with seven candidates enrolled. Those are Senator Poindexter, Herbert Hoover, General Wood, General Pershing, Governor Lowden of Illinois, Senator Johnson and William G. Simpson of Detroit.

In Michigan, on the Democratic ticket to be voted on April 5, five names appear: Governor Edward L. Edwards (New Jersey), William Jennings Bryan, Attorney-General A. Mitchell Palmer, William G. McAdoo and Herbert C. Hoover's is the only name appearing on both lists.

SKIING CARNIVAL AT CONCORD TOMORROW

Concord will hold its first skiing and snowshoeing carnival tomorrow afternoon at Nashawtuc Hill under the auspices of the Boys' Club. The program will begin at 3 p. m. and will consist of a snowshoe race, ski jumping for boys under sixteen, senior ski jumping open to all comers, 100-yard dash on skis, ski cross-country run, double and triple ski jumping and tobogganing and coasting events.

Mr. Ladd served in France with the 26th Division as a machine gun officer, and was invalided home as a result of wounds received in action. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George U. Ladd of Worcester, Mass.

JUDGE GROVER OF NEEDHAM DEAD

Taken Ill in Street Car, Jurist Passes Away in Drug Store

While on his way from his Needham home to court, Judge Emery Grover, for many years justice of the Dedham District Court, died today.

With Representative Samuel H. Wragg he was riding on a Grove street car when he was taken ill. He was taken to a drug store, and Dr. Andrew H. Hodgdon was summoned. The physician pronounced him dead.

Judge Grover was connected with the Dedham Court for twenty-two years. He was active in the affairs of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, and maintained an office on Bromfield street, Boston.

URGE NEIGHBORS' DAY FOR ALL AMERICA

A nation-wide campaign has begun to make June 14, now "Flag Day," also "Neighbors' Day," the purpose being to make it a point to become acquainted with one's nearest neighbors. Franklin K. Lane called it an experiment in good will, and in an address said that the old type of intimate village life had all but disappeared. He has called a conference of delegates from every State and every social organization of magnitude to arrange plans for the celebration of the day.

SOVIET RENEWS OFFER TO TAKE U. S. RUSSIANS

Washington, March 5.—The Russian Soviet government today renewed its offer to take out of the country, without expense to the United States, all Russian citizens that this government decrees undesirable. The renewed offer came in a letter to government officials from Charles Recht of New York, an attorney for the Soviet government. He said a similar offer made in November to Secretary Lansing had not even received a reply. Soviet Russia will furnish the ships if Uncle Sam will give it clearance, place no restrictions on its provisioning and guarantee safe passage.

24,183 TONS OF COAL ARRIVE

Several Vessels Bring Cargoes to Boston; Trains Moving Again

Ships bringing 24,183 tons of coal arrived in Boston today. Some of the vessels had been delayed by the temporary closing of the Cape Cod Canal. As a result of its reopening on Thursday a procession of craft, chiefly coal laden, filed into the harbor today.

They include steamship Arlington, from Norfolk, 2,911 tons; Coverdale, Norfolk, 2,806; Lake Bledsoe, Norfolk, 2,346; Lake Dunmore, Norfolk, 2,527; Lake Flambeau, Philadelphia, 3,600; Lake Geneva, Norfolk, 2,493; tug Raymond, from Norfolk, towing the Providence and the Maryland, each with 2,500 tons.

More freight cars are moving coal and food supplies in New England today than at any time since January. In all perhaps 10,000 cars are on the move along New England rails.

In fact, so active are the freight trains that passenger service is hampered. This is particularly noticeable on the Boston & Maine line at Salem, where the passenger trains are held while long lines of freight pass through the single track tunnel. Passenger trains through the tunnel were delayed from thirty minutes to an hour today.

The freights which have been stalled and frozen in at junctions, in terminal yards and on sidings were all getting under way today, and indications were that with a few more days of this weather freight conditions on the Boston & Maine would be normal. Conditions on the Boston & Albany have been normal for several days. The New Haven road finds itself hampered by the lack of motive power, but is using every effort to get both the freight and passenger service in condition.

WORKER SUES B. & M. FOR $50,000 FOR INJURIES

The Boston & Maine Railroad has been sued for $50,000 by James A. McLaughlin of Cambridge, a car inspector employed by the company, who charges he was thrown from a car and run over by a train while at work August 6, 1919, owing to negligence of the company.

"Brain Influenza" Rages in Vienna

London, March 5.—A terrible new scourge, called "Brain influenza," is now ravaging Vienna, said a news agency dispatch from that city today. The disease is accompanied by convulsions and hallucinations and the victims die in horrible delirium.

Prominent Boston physicians are unable to define the new disease. Dr. Frank W. Carey, director of communicable diseases of the State Board of Health, says that the malady may be a violent form of meningitis.

FIRE IN POLICE STATION

Four Prisoners Removed From Cells During Blaze in Hanover St. Guard Room

Four prisoners, locked in the cells of the Hanover street police station, were saved from suffocation today after fire broke out in the guard room.

Policemen asleep in their beds upstairs in the dormitory were roused by Lieutenant Ridlon and dashed down stairs to seek safety in the street.

The fire started from a cigarette thrown behind a radiator in the guardroom and when discovered it was blazing briskly. Policemen formed themselves into a voluntary fire department and extinguished the blaze. The damage was slight.

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX
On Life Beyond the Grave
Letters of Poetess Reveal "Communications From the Spirit World"

(The following hitherto unpublished letters from America's greatest poetess to her favorite brother, Marcus P. Wheeler, Windsor, Wis., a Civil War veteran, constitute a remarkable human document. At one and the same time they set forth what she believed her certain knowledge of the life hereafter, based upon communications from her husband, Robert M. Wilcox, who died in 1916, and also very interesting sidelights on the daily life and views of this writer whose name is known to everyone who reads. These letters will be printed in daily instalments.)

Tours, July 10, 1918, 2 Hotel del'Univers, 8 a. m.

Dear Marcus:

We are all packed to go to Nantes, to give an entertainment this evening at the Y. M. C. A. hall and another at the hospital tomorrow. Then we go on the Saint Nazaire—3 hours more—and give a series of entertainments until the 21st, when we return here.

In order to go even a few miles away anywhere, there is such a rigmarole to go through—silly papers and permissions. They have to get your request in writing—the why, when, and how, and where. Then they telephone to Army Headquarters, far away—long distance—and wait for permission to give what is asked. Then they forget to telephone you it is given and you send a courier, and then go yourself.

Mrs. Randall went yesterday a. m. and found my permission made out—but none for her! They sent her back to have me make out another request and again telephoned headquarters, and we never knew sure we could go till 6:30 last night. We were billed at Nantes for 8 this evening, so it was a nervous strain, of course. Fortunately, I had gotten my second wind after giving out utterly the day before and feeling I couldn't go through the ordeal of packing and all the rest. When I do collapse I touch bottom, and then always come up to the top again with new force. I had a timely touch of "summer complaint" yesterday and it cleared body and mind, so I feel like a debutante going to her first party.

PACKING AN ORDEAL.

It showered last night and the day is gloriously fresh and cool for our four hours' trip. We take only handbags, but had to pack everything up and give up our room while gone. That is always a hard ordeal. We try to get along with as little stuff as possible, but feet must have changes of shoes, and they take space, and my writing things and books and dictionary to translate all fill up. Well, we are packed and not a bit fagged at the starting hour.

I just long to stand before the audience of hundreds of eager American boys. We do get such wonderful vibrations from them. Yesterday I saw a glorious youth of 22 or 23, with his arm in a splint. I walked beside him and said, "You're one of our American boys, I know!" He smiled and said, "I sure am," in his adorable Southern accent. I introduced myself and he was so enthusiastic, and I am to visit him at the hospital on my return. He will be there two weeks more.

I shall stay here at Tours from the 21st to August 18th—then probably go away again for two weeks; then back here for the winter, I think, with trips off now and then. It is remarkable that the greatest X-ray doctor in the world is here and treating me! And it is curious that he wanted me to stop treatment for two weeks before he knew I was going on this trip. I was directed to him by Robert.

I gave up London, as it was not possible to go there at the time I planned—and I then found somuch to do here. I will probably go to England in the late winter—I really haven't planned very far ahead. This is said to be a good winter and climate—no snow. I may go still farther south.

Yes, it was the smart editor who after my clear description of "Miller's Hall" and its location, printed it "Windsor." But any intelligent person who read my story of it would know it was a misprint. I haven't a doubt of what you say. There are hundreds of thousands of jelly-fish minds who would seize joyfully on a typographical error in a date or name as the shining proof that all my big, sacred, spiritual experiences were lies.

That class of people forms the ranks of humanity. They resent the teachings of the disembodied intelligence which insists on self-development—sacrifice of self for others—an unremitting sense of responsibility—as the passwords to heaven. They want an "atonement" at the last minute, or annihilation. Anything they can do to make you out a liar if you talk a higher ideal they will do. But I'm in good company—the best minds of the day are with me—so I am content; Conan Doyle, Sir Oliver Lodge, Flammarion, Lombroso, and a hundred others.

MESSAGES TO FRIEND.

Lady Blake has sent me a letter to use in my book of her relief in receiving messages from her glorious husband, Sir Henry Blake. Robert and I visited them years ago in Ireland—in a house built thirty years before Columbus discovered America. Sir Henry was four years Governor of Ceylon, four of Hongkong, eight of Jamaica. Both he and she were profoundly educated and cultured. She went nearly mad at his death until her messages came.

A lady who lives in a paradise here, an old chateau, came and brought Count de Choisent (whose family made a notes in the days of Louis XIII, and I believe was full of mischief) to call on me to talk of occult things. I was asked to lunch in their fairy story chateau. I never saw a more wonderful place. Georgeous forests of trees hundreds of years old at least—and such a house! We had a wonderful time; another pleasure that came through Robert.

Count Choisent is willing I should use his name also in my book. I remember what you brought me one night from Sun Prairie—the story of Aladdin's lamp—a little limp illustrated booklet. It thrilled me and I believed every word of it. I seem to have lived so much of it since. This day at the chateau seemed another page of it—in this war-riddled land to step into such an enchanted spot was like a dream. The mother of my hostess was born in Italy. All spoke fair English—but I was able to speak a little Italian with the Grand-Dame, and so we used three languages in turns that day. I wish I had studied languages more seriously in the past. It lends life more color and interest to be able to speak and read various tongues.

Well, good-by for today.

ELLA.

SHAM VETS WEAR WAR BUTTONS

Charge Stores Sell Discharge Decorations to Pseudo Heroes for 37 Cents

Protest has been made by former service men and members of American Legion Posts in Massachusetts, against the manufacture and distribution of "Victory" and wounded discharge buttons, which they claim are now being worn by hundreds of civilians, who did not serve in the war, and who are unauthorized to wear either of the coveted insignia.

Several military supply stores are said to be selling service buttons for 37 cents each to men who do not present either army or navy discharge papers to show that they are veterans.

Colonel Edward L. Logan, State commander of the legion, has requested Senator David I. Walsh to take the matter up. The State headquarters of the legion and the intelligence officers of the Northeastern Department will also co-operate with the legionaires in the prosecution of those found to be wearing the button illegally.

RAISA POWERFUL IN VERDI'S 'AIDA'

Chicagoians Give Admirable Performance of Popular Opera

By FRED J. McISAAC.

After all it was "Aida" which put the word grand in front of opera. It never disappoints. It is the final word in Italian magnificence. It makes the horn blowers and the drum players and the fiddlers work harder than they ever do for anything else.

Some of these modern composers who write what they call music dramas make as much noise as Verdi in the pageant scene, but do they ever write such glorious tunes? Answer in chorus. They do not.

"Aida" is an opera which requires that every singer put his best foot forward. Most of the time Papa Verdi has his foot on the loud pedal, and his tenor, soprano, baritone and contralto have to use all their lung powwd to trail along.

MUCH BRASS IN EVIDENCE.

When Verdi wrote "Aida" back in the seventies he built it to order for the Khedive of Egypt. He knew the Oriental's love of magnificence and barbaric spender, and he gave them to him.

Can't you see that potentate sitting back in his private box at the opera, with his favorite wives on each knee and the overflow lounging around at his feet, while he watched the ancient Ruler of Egypt welcome his favorite general back from the war, and his ears were deafened by the array of long trumpets pointed at him by the stage band?

And think how Verdi must have chuckled when he put a full brass band on the stage, although the period of the opera was a thousand years B. C., and the only musical instruments of those days were the tymbrel, the lyre and the tom-tom. He probably figured that the Orientals wouldn't know the difference.

But "Aida" is far more than noise. Verdi may have started out with his tongue in his cheek, but the only kind of music he could write was immortal music. The pageant pleases the unmusical most, but the initiated know that the music of the Nile scene is very nearly sublime. Regarding the performers last night we had our old friends of "Gioconda," Raisa, Rimini and Dolci.

RAISA'S TONES POWERFUL.

Raisa is a good looking girl even in her shoe polish as Aida, the Ethiope belle. She is the owner of one of the finest voices now being exhibited in grand opera. But when she sings something seems to be whispering in her ear "Go ahead and drown them all, orchestra, tenor and chorus." And she does. But she does it by using all the lung power the Lord gave her, and she hurls it out with such force that when it doesn't hit the pitch—ouch!

Seriously, she should not work so hard. Her present method, or lack of it, will limit her days in opera. We have evidences all around us of fine voices ruined because the owners yelled their heads off instead of singing. Last night Raisa was better than in "Gioconda. She occasionally sang with discretion and fine tone, and gave much pleasure.

Dolci as Rhadames is handicapped by looking more like a high private in the rear rank of the Calabrian contingent of the Italian army than a very cocky Egyptian general. Vocally he is a fair Rhadames. He lacks the pealing tones of Zenatello, or the rich, round, mellow notes of Caruso, but he sings the music adequately.

Regarding Rimini, I suppose he does the best he can. Dramatically he isn't a bad Amonasro. Van Gordon is a beautiful woman, built upon heroic lines, but how those tenors must hate her. Being six feet tall or more, she makes the average tenor look like a Western Union messenger boy. Her voice is very lovely and she uses it with intelligence, but as an actress—alongside of her, Theda Bara is a Duse (not deuce).

DANCING ADMIRABLE.

The Chicago chorus is hardly numerous enough for the requirements of this opera and De Angelis conductor, has no difficulty in drowning them.

All those naughty little ballet girls and the wicked ballet boys were there, though I feared after "Aphrodit" they would be reposing in prison cells. The "Aida" ballet doesn't permit much nudeness. Evidently the Egyptians of Rhadames day were more Methodist in their theories than the Egyptians of Alexandria in the times of Demetrius. But despite the handicap of a few veils the dancing last night was admirable.

Many Society Box Parties at Opera

Prominent among those at the opera were Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Burnham and Miss Nina Burnham, Mrs. Burnham and her daughter both in black satin; Mrs. George R. Fearing, Jr., in black velvet; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Dumaresq, Mrs. Dumaresq wearing black and white flowered chiffon over black satin; Mr. and Mrs. Bancroft Davee, the latter in American beauty-toned satin and tulle; Miss Dorothy Bolles in buttercup taffeta and chiffon, with her father, Mr. Richard F. Bolles; Mrs. Gardiner M. Lane in black satin and her daughter, Miss Katharine Lane in silver gray satin and tulle, and Miss Helen Jaques and her niece, Mrs. Bartol Parker, both in black.

Mr. and Mrs. William L. McKee, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Bancroft and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Fitman, all had box parties. Mrs. McKee was in black satin and tulle and Mrs. Bancroft and Mrs. Fitman were of the number wearing black velvet. Mrs. Eben D. Jordan's party included Mrs. J. Hurd Hutchins; and of the girls who have been out a year or more were Miss Elizabeth Whiting in black with touches of pink, with Miss Anita Sturgis who was also in black with silver lace and embroidery; Miss Elizabeth Burgess in black velvet, Miss Barbara Foster in turquoise and gold brocade, and Miss Nancy Ely in green satin and of the debutantes, Miss Elizabeth Cassell in pink satin and tulle.

Mrs. Randolph M. Appleton, her daughter, Miss Sybil Appleton, in ruby velvet and chiffon; Mrs. Francis L. Higginson, her daughter, Miss Corisa Higginson, in brown tulle, with suggestions of silver; Miss Belle and Miss Abby Hunt, Miss Elinor Quincy, Mrs. Grant Walker and Mrs. E. Rohter Welch, all of whom wore black; Mrs. Prescott Bigelow, Jr., in cerise satin and tulle; Mrs. James Fuller Lord, in royal purple velvet; Mr. and Mrs. William Dana Orcutt, Mrs. Orcutt wearing French blue brocaded satin with touches of white; Miss Elisabeth Ayer, in silver gray satin; Mrs. Henry A. Rueter, in black jetted lace, with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Reyburn, the latter in crimson satin with touches of silver; Mrs. Albert H. Whittier, in pale blue brocaded satin, and Mrs. Charles H. Gibson and her son, Mr. Charles Gibson, were others there.

FOUNDER OF BILL LIBRARY IN R. I. DIES IN FLORIDA

Groton, Ct., March 5.—Word has reached here from Winter Park, Fla., of the death there of Frederick Bill, eighty-eight, the last descendant of John Bill of Colonial fame. He was a brother of the late Henry Bill, widely known publisher, and with him founded the Bill Memorial Library, endowing it with $2,500,000.

INJURED MANCHESTER, N. H., FIREMAN EXPECTED TO DIE

Manchester, N. H., March 5.—Faint hope is held out for the recovery of Fireman Frank W. Tabbetts, of Engine 7, seriously injured in a 50-foot plunge from a burning scaffold while fighting the fire which destroyed the Boston & Maine coal shed at an estimated damage of $25,000.

SAY DEAN PROOF IS IGNORED

Jaffrey Selectmen Charge Governor Bartlett Refused to Hear Dean Case Evidence

East Jaffrey, N. H., March 5.—In a joint statement given to the press today, the selectmen of this town disputed claims set forth in an editorial which appeared in the Concord Patriot on the same day that Governor Bartlett withdrew his $50,000 damage suit against that newspaper and its publisher. The selectmen's statement follows:

"The editorial in the Concord Patriot of Governor Bartlett says 'just fled' is an unfortunate description of the wholesale appearance on the floor of the House and Senate and meeting in the Executive Council chamber.

"That is about as accurate as the appearance has been in all things pertaining to our attempt to clear up the murder of Dr. William Kendrick Dean.

BARTLETT ONLY ORATOR.

"The facts were that Governor Bartlett was the only orator on that occasion. He refused to permit us to speak or our counsel, Attorney Harry N. Guterman of Boston, or the relatives of Dr. Dean. So that 'the wholesale aspersions on the State at the recent turbulent meeting' complained of by the Concord Patriot must have come from the Governor's own mouth. Nobody else had a chance to say a word.

"The piece of editorial also stated We do not believe that the responsible officers of the law sought to a child nor person they have reason to suppose has a guilty knowledge of the Dean case.'

"Now that very claim has been one of our greatest obstacles in attempting to avenge the murder of our brave townsman. It has been hurled at us by the Governor, by Attorney-General Logan and by County Solicitor Pickard but we consider it an evasion just plain bunk.

"If Logan and Pickard are as eager and sincere as they would like to have the people of New Hampshire believe, why did they conduct the grand jury inquiry in the Dean case along the theory that Mrs. Dean committed the crime? Why did they scoff at the mass of evidence about death intimidations and signal shots which are at the bottom of the murder? Why did they accept the word of federal agents"

REDLIFF PROBE ATTEMPTS.

"Why do Young and Pickard keep on saying 'the Dean case is open and we welcome new evidence' and behind the scenes rebuff those who are honestly and patriotically trying to secure justice? Why do they ignore evidence of a most convincing and damning nature, which involves other persons who have a pull and which combats their theory about the possible guilt of Mrs. Dean?

"We have grown sick and tired of such horse play. We wonder how long the people of New Hampshire will continue to be duped by political connivery in relation to the foul murder of a loyal American by enemy agents in time of war."

ALLEGED DRUG PEDDLER CAUGHT AT PROVIDENCE

Providence, March 5.—A wild chase, which started from a Snow street tenement house, through private streets and over back walls, with internal revenue officers doing the "chasing" resulted in the arrest of John Scimpario, thirty two and ended in the office of U. S. Commissioner A. E. Watson, who held him in $2,000 bonds for the Federal grand jury, charged with peddling narcotics.

Scimpario had $180 and a quantity of what revenue officers called "cheer" in his possession.

SEVERAL NEAR DEATH AS ROOF CAVES IN

Worcester, March 5.—Damage of about $16,000 was caused by the caving in of one E of the brick block at No. 202-204 Main street, due to a weakening through the jacking up of an adjoining block under repairs. Several persons had miraculous escapes from death. The wreckage fell into the street just as a sled upon which a youngster was sliding down George street hill passed the spot.

ACTRESS WIFE SUES BISHOP

Seeks to Force Grandson of Late New Haven Head to Support Her

Bridgeport, March 5.—Mrs. Blanca West Bishop, known on the stage as Blanca West when she married William D. Bishop, then a Yale sophomore, in 1911, has started an action here to compel him to support her.

The defendant is a grandson of the late William D. Bishop, president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, and is a member of a family regarded as one of the wealthiest in Connecticut.

Upon Mrs. Bishop's application an order was issued by the Superior Court attaching for $200,000 her husband's $50,000 estate and directing that his checks and drafts against all banks in Connecticut where he has funds shall not be paid until the action is settled.

The couple were married at Black Rock, the bride's home, after a whirlwind courtship, and they made a journey around the world on their honeymoon.

The Man Who Loved Good Desserts

"There goes Edith Bradford," said Mrs. Knowlton as she and Mrs. Winston were sitting on the porch sewing one afternoon. "She and Bob certainly seem happy together."

"I am sure they are," answered Mrs. Winton, "and that reminds me of something funny that happened before they were married. One day Edith came to me in the greatest excitement.

"'What am I going to do?' she exclaimed tragically. 'Bob's mother has just told me he could live on cornstarch pudding and blanc mange, and I simply cannot make either one.'

She was so serious about it, it was laughable.

"'Never mind,' I reassured her. 'There is Puddine.'

"'Puddine?' she questioned. 'What is it?'

"'A most wonderful dessert—rich and creamy and luscious.'

"'How do you make it?' said Edith.

"'Why, you just add sugar and milk, either fresh or condensed, and boil it for three minutes. Out it comes, after it's cool, a firm, creamy mold of luscious, rich dessert.'

"'Well, I'm certainly glad to know it,' sighed Edith. 'I'm a mother in such a wonderful cook!'

"'I know you'll both like Puddine,' I said; 'and it comes in any number of flavors—chocolate, rose, vanilla, almond, lemon and new others. And then you can make rich, creamy pie and cake fillings with Puddine, and you can even make ice cream with it.'

"'I suppose you'll finish, however,' said Edith, 'by telling me it's expensive and so rich one can't eat much of it anyhow.'

I told her that a 15c box served 15 people, and was very wholesome.

Shortly after she was married I was talking to her again. "Oh, Mrs. Winton," she said, "how can I ever thank you? Puddine is wonderful. Bob raves about my desserts, and Puddine has done it all."

Order some Puddine from your grocer today!—Adv.

PALMER EAGER FOR INQUIRY

Welcomes Full Investigation Under Tinkham's Sugar Probe Resolution

By International News Service.

Washington, March 5.—"I welcome the fullest possible investigation," Attorney-General A. Mitchell Palmer declared today concerning the resolution of Congressman Tinkham, Republican, of Massachusetts, passed in the House

A resolution was led for an inquiry into the Attorney-General's conduct in connection with fixing the price of Louisiana sugar and it was intimated [illegible] had for its object Palmer's impeachment.

The investigation called for would be by the Judiciary Committee of the House composed of twenty members, thirteen Republicans and seven Democrats. Its chairman is Andrew J. Volstead, Republican of Minnesota, father of the famous Volstead prohibition enforcement act.

Tinkham's charge was [illegible] Attorney-General had concurred in a proposal fixing the price of sugar at 15 and 15 cents a pound submitted by the United States District Attorney of New Orleans and that his acts had tended to allow manufacturers large profits without danger of prosecution for profiteering.

High officials of the Department of Justice denounced the move as a politics, one from the last Democratic Congressmen make the same charge.

A close friend of the attorney-general declared today that Palmer would welcome a direct attempt at impeachment and that he has nothing to fear from his political enemies at the Capitol.

The political storm in the House abated somewhat today and none of the Republicans evinced any desire to take up the challenge to "impeach the Attorney-General." The fight is expected to begin afresh, however, as soon as the House Judiciary Committee perfects its plans for a hearing.

CLAIMS FILM BILL IS AUTOCRATIC

Ex-Congressman Carter Says Present Laws Can Cope with Movie "Evils"

"Creation of a motion picture censorship board would only be justified in a State when the administration of the criminal law had broken down and when the courts were unable to cope with any evil that may be involved.

This was the statement today of former Congressman William H. Carter of Needham Heights, who is among the army of opponents to the censorship bill now in the hands of the Legislative Committee on Mercantile Affairs and which is soon to be reported upon to the Massachusetts House.

WATCHED FILM GROWTH.

Mr. Carter was the first Congressman perhaps in this country to see the educational advantages of the motion picture screen and a few years ago had a picture made which was shown throughout his congressional district. In discussing this matter he said:

"I believe in the great possibilities of the motion picture screen. I have followed this industry with great interest and have watched it grow from the time that little shows were given in halls and barns until today when it is rated as the fifth largest industry in this country.

"I am very strongly in favor of anything that would tend to make a clean, wholesome American picture, but I am confident that a censorship board as proposed would not bring us the desired results.

"There are many well-intentioned men and women who honestly believe that a legalized censorship would be a good thing for our State if they had studied this question as closely as I have and had seen the workings of a censorship first as I have. I believe that they would change their opinion.

"Friction of any sort creates the power that drives the engine of progress and free discussion is the safest valve. The success of American strength and success lies in the conflict of opinion and of parties.

'RIGHT OF FREE SPEECH.

"Free speech, free press and free discussion and free religion have made the United States the vanguard of liberty. Blot by a century and a half of pure civic soil, it covers its wounds with the mould of falsehoods from the tombs of men. The safety of our Republic lies in her free institutions.

"Why make laws for the suppression of pictures when we have sufficient laws on our statute books to prohibit the showing of obscene pictures?

"We have down kaiserism and imperialism and militarism 'over there' only to try to foster it over here by the introduction of such a measure as a censorship bill. I am not pleading the cause of a radical, but the cause of Massachusetts and its sacred traditions and principles.

"The abridgement of speech or any mode of expression is but a step to the everlasting reversal of kaiserism. It makes a mock of our war for democracy.

"The proposed law would give to a small group of people the arbitrary power to decide what the millions of people in this Commonwealth should see. Do you know that four years ago the censorship board of Kansas stopped a picture which showed Justice Hughes, then the candidate for President of the United States, making a speech?

FILMS AIDING U. S.

"Our business today is to remove the cause for unrest that is sweeping over this country. A great deal of the unrest is due to the necessary restraint during the war.

"The government has mobilized the great motion picture industry to combat Bolshevism in this country. This industry in turn needs the support of the State Legislatures and the great mass of the American people to help carry on this work.

"The liberties of America and Massachusetts are in the balance. You cannot tamper with one without jeopardizing the others. They are too indissolubly intertwined.

"Our government is the servant of the people and not the master. The vagaries of the government, if it is right to say or see wise things then it is equally right to say or see foolish things and the wise must certainly overcome the foolish. Let truth and error grapple. Who ever knew truth to be beaten in a fair fight?"

Police Chiefs of State Protest Film Board

Declaring that municipal censorship had proved satisfactory, the Massachusetts chiefs of police unanimously adopted a resolution disapproving of the bill to provide a State board to censor moving pictures at their annual meeting held at the American House.

Both sides of the proposed legislation was discussed at length by Judge J. Albert Brackett of the West Roxbury Municipal Court, in opposition to the bill, and Chief Sampson, general secretary of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, who favors the bill.

Many chiefs voiced their doubt of the ability of nine persons on such a proposed board being able to consider the best interests of the people in the matter. The question dealt almost entirely with the effect of movies on children in their teens.

Chief William E. Hill of Everett placed the responsibility for the morals of the children on the home.

Chief Martin Feeney of Fall River could not see where the new board could work improvement. Both he and Chief James H. McKenna of Waltham declared that they have no trouble with the censorship of moving pictures. Chief Charles A. Kenniai of Somerville said that he believed a censorship is an necessary for adults as for children.

Chief Guilty, the retiring president, presided. President Richard E. Rose of the Somerville Board of Aldermen was a guest of Chief Kendall.

Sanford Bates, State director of prisons, talked on modern methods in detecting criminals.

These officers were elected. Chief George H. Hill of Worcester, president; Chief Martin Feeney of Fall River, vice-president; Ex-Chief

NITTI TO MEET MILLERAND

Talk of Aid for Germany Hailed With Delight by Berlin Envoys

By International News Service.

Paris, March 5—Premier Nitti of Italy probably will confer with Premier Millerand this evening to explain his views on the proposal to help Germany get to her feet economically.

Premier Nitti denies he suggested wiping out entirely Germany's war indemnities, although he favors a loan to her by neutral countries, if properly safeguarded.

The apparent decision by the allies to assist Germany economically is hailed with delight by Herr Bergman, German representative on the reparations commission, and other German officials in Paris.

While the Teuton officials would not talk for publication, they are said by their intimates to regard French press action as paving the way for instructions to receive at an early date an announcement from Premier Millerand that France will favor economic assistance to Germany on condition that Germany show her good faith in fulfilling all her treaty obligations.

The Germans were at first very much disheartened when announcement was made of the appointment of former President Poincare to the reparations commission. They feared that M. Poincare would prove an unyielding foe to the central powers, and would oppose any suggestions of aid, but the Germans are now more optimistic. They believe that there may be important developments at the next meeting of the reparations commission.

SIGNS OF REAL BASEBALL IN CAMP OF BRAVES

By NICK FLATLEY.

Columbus, Ga., March 5.—The well-known day of rest is always welcome, except in a Spring training camp, after the athletes have had only a couple of chances to limber up. Consequently the showers that fell here in dry Georgia didn't make a special hit, and there was a very strenuous program outlined for this March day.

Manager Rowland sentenced his athletes to go out to the race track and trot a couple of miles but the deluge was too much.

"This is another year" in baseball with a vengeance. All the looking and frivolities around the training camps in 1919 has departed. Nobody is kicking about overwork or too much practice of anything, for all hands seem to realize that real baseball must be played this season from the drop of the hat as they say.

Layoff Disgruntles Vets and Rookies

Even the veterans who are sadly few on the squad were disgruntled at the layoff while the youngsters were themselves doing, running around like colts. These Braves are a lot of real youthful prospects who are really anxious and determined to go through and the spirit is contagious. Even the regulars have a good sign to give and only play fielding and batting after there's been a good period to keep it in trim.

It will be a great day in Boston to-day when Manager Barrow and Coach Wagner, of John L. Sullivan who is one of the aspiring outfielders, leave this city from the experts who will watch this part of the training camp and pick the players that will make and field and do service.

Certain it is, there is a mixed plenty of ability on this team in the opening practice. He has freely without too much work and needs no application to get in line. He is what you might call a bunch of boys some six feet high, broad-shouldered and husky with a pair of arms that would make the village blacksmith green with envy. He is up to a fair experience to take in and discipline and to be taught a whole lot to come through.

Players Showing Fine Spirit This Year

It has been a pretty good week for them to get new shoes, eligible we have noticed earlier in the season. Dana Fitting, who has been out of less than a week to report over-weight, blew in here as a heavy, big and hard as nails. Walton Cruise, quickly last season, showed up all sunburned from the Carolina golf links, cut chopping wood all Winter and was ready to start any time.

Veterans Dutch Ruether, Rabbit Maranville kept themselves slender and agile. Catcher Snyder, who injured his knee in a game with the Cincinnati Reds last season, reported in good shape. Pat Ragan, another of the Winter-in-the-Adirondacks contingent, had deer and other denizens of the wild waters to shake, not more than a couple of miles out of camp, and produced an arm that proved to be in good shape for baseball at the start. Leach, Oscar Dugey who last season seemed to ever be hitting 4 smooth to file off superfluous avoirdupois.

LOCAL SEXTET MUST BRACE

Dartmouth Club Will Have to Improve Its Hockey to Battle Victorias

A much better brand of ice hockey than they displayed in their last game will be required of Dartmouth club players to-night if they hope to stem the steadily growing tide of the Victorias, city champions of Montreal and Quebec, who are coming here to determine the amateur hockey championship of the Dominion.

The Victorias will present a line-up similar to the one which played here early in the season, when they defeated the Boston Hockey club and treated local fans to one of the most brilliant exhibitions of ice play ever seen in Boston.

The present Dartmouth Club line-up appears to be a most formidable one among the local amateur teams but the Dopup failed to display hockey of sufficient power to defeat the Harvard Club last week, and unless a change for the better is evidenced to-night the Canadians are sure to capture the contest.

SIEGAL BOXES SHEVLIN IN TRIPLE A MAIN BOUT

Nate Siegal, the pride of Revere and Eddie Shevlin, the pride of Roxbury are the two scheduled to battle in the main bout of the six-round boxing and wrestling show next Friday evening at the Peoples Temple.

In the semi-final on the card of three rounds between Phil Mascia of Boston and Young Kelly of Philadelphia, Larry Mahoney and Jack Rogers, Lynn boxers, will meet in the opening bout of the evening.

HARVARD CREWS TO ROW FROM LYNN BOATHOUSE

Harvard's varsity and freshman crews will row from the West Lynn boathouse on Monday. Manager Morris Houghton has reported that the shell crews have taken cabin and will train from there. Coach Ellis Ryan is also expected to be present during the week. His fitness will depend on the chance he may have to leave his duties at the local navy yard. Charges have been made that the local navy yard has been taken from the Lynn boathouse.

CONCORD BASEBALL STAR TO JOIN REDS

Pitcher Gerrish, Concord's star baseball player, has signed a contract with Manager Mitchell of the Cincinnati Reds at Macon, Ga., and will report to the Reds' training camp at Orangeburg, S. C., March 15. Gerrish, who has been out of baseball for the past two years, would have joined the world's champions after the New England League broke up, but a broken ankle kept him from getting a chance.

ROSLINDALE POST TO HOLD BOXING MEET

Irving W. Adams Post, American Legion, of Roslindale, will conduct a boxing tournament next month for ex-service men. The chairman of the boxing committee will receive entries before March 15 from featherweight to heavyweight classes. Address No. 4 Bagnall avenue, Roslindale.

GODDARD DEFEATS EDDIE McGOORTY

London, March 5.—Frank Goddard, who recently met Joe Beckett, won from Eddie McGoorty in a one-sides boxing match stopping the referee in the fourth round.

ARLINGTON QUINTET VANQUISHES MEDFORD

An Arlington town team easily defeated Medford town team, 39 to 24, at Arlington. Between halves, St. Mary's Independents of Cambridge won from the Arlington Seconds, 13 to 8.

C. A. C. Doors Closed

The doors of the Commercial Club will remain closed this evening, the regular show having been held up while repairs are being made in the main quarters. The announcement appeared in Friday's issue of the Boston American.

Gives the fans a day of rest in a busy week. The club will run next Friday, however, and have helped to harden up the players.

HENDRYX ADDED TO RED SOX

American Association Slugger Will Endeavor to Fill Gap Caused by Selling Ruth

By JACK CONWAY

Hot Springs, Ark., March 5.—It has fallen to the lot of Tim Hendryx to fill the gap caused by the departure of Babe Ruth and his home-run wallops. Having drawn such an important assignment it is proper that Timothy should be called to the front of the baseball stage where the calcium can shine on him.

Now that we have the new Red Sox player out where we can gaze on him without any unnecessary craning of our necks let us give him the well-known East and West. Timothy is a well set up young man and scales close to 180 pounds. He is five feet ten inches tall. He is some twenty-eight years old and is making his third attempt to become a big league hero.

Hendryx first burst on the baseball horizon with the Yankees. That club let him go to St. Louis along with Gideon, Nunamaker and Shocker in the deal for Pratt and Plank. Inasmuch as Hendryx failed to do any Ty Cobb stunts while with the Browns he was cut adrift and finally landed with the Louisville club of the American Association.

Batting Sensation in A. A. Last Year

They started to christen baseball bats and punch drinks after Hendryx last year for he was the batting sensation of the American Association.

He led the circuit with an average of .366, which is pretty tidy awating for these dry times.

The sorrowful feature about the arrival of this new right-handed slugger is that Bill Lamar has been let go to Cleveland along with a cash consideration, said to be $100,000.

Lamar is twenty-two years old and one of the most promising players in baseball. He has as good a throwing arm as any player in the American League while as a hard hitter he would seem as though the Red Sox could have at some other player in preference to Lamar provided that player was necessary to complete the deal.

I could have been much better off to have made a straight cash deal for Hendryx as a Red Sox need a little added strength they can muster.

Hikes Over Ozarks to Harden Muscles

The Red Sox expected to get in a long practice session. The weather has been anything but good since the main squad arrived here. This has retarded the development of the athletes. Long hikes over the Ozarks, however, have helped to harden up the players.

BIG ZBYSZKO IS HARDLY READY

Pole Throws Grandovich But Shows He Is Not Yet Back in Old-Time Form

Wrestling fans who went to Mechanics to get a line on the chances of Stanislaus Zbyszko against Joe Stecher are satisfied that the latter's title is safe as far as the mighty Pole is concerned, as Stecher defeated his sturdy young opponent John Grandovich, with ease winning the match by two falls out of three but failed to reveal promise of being anything more than a short and contender against Stecher.

Took Pole 15 Minutes to Get Started

It took fifteen minutes for Stanislaus to warm up his stream. Then at his fastest he showed he is at present far too slow to cope with the chain-lightning of Stecher's style. Science in the entire bout, however, was the old veteran in danger from his far younger opponent. All Grandovich could bother Stanislaus with was a assortment of wrist arm and head locks.

The first fall came suddenly in 48 minutes. Both were upright, with Grandovich behind. Big Zib then reached back for a perfect double headlock. Over he went Grandovich in a flying mare. The second fall came out of a body lift in 8 minutes 50 seconds. Zib following it up with a crotch head scissors and body leverage. While the toe hold was allowed, neither man used it.

"Cyclone" Burns Tosses Czecho-Slovak Wrestler

Another "old master" appeared in "Cyclone" Burns against Vesko, the Czecho-Slovak heavyweight. Burns stopped the foreigner with a head scissors and wrist lock in the one-fall match in 40 minutes 20 seconds. Vesko had height, weight and a shade of power on Burns, but the latter, continually the aggressor and always rushing up his man, won out by his infinitely superior skill.

The first professional jiu jitsu match seen here in one of the fastest of the majors of the line of wrestling lovers. Masked, the Jap champion, worn in twenty-four minutes and fifteen seconds after Bobby Pitts, the Dixie coast champion, had shaken him and the ring like a dog with a rag doll. Every one was surprised at the toe holds and body grips of the American would subdue the oriental, failed to hold an advantage for much a few seconds, until the latter suddenly pinned an arm and leg and then both feet on Brown's neck. It would have disabled Brown to continue and he promptly quit.

Suffolk A. A. to Stage Two Twelve-Round Bouts at Monday's Meeting

The Suffolk A. A. of Roxbury will stage its next show on Monday night in Hibernian Hall. The card includes two twelve-round bouts, an eight and a six-rounder for an opener.

In the feature bout Barney Snyder of Jamaica Plain will clash with Battling Tommy Murray of Philadelphia, and as the latter is rated as one of the best and fastest of the little fellows, a good bout should be in store. This will be Snyder's first battle since his return from Australia.

The second twelve will show Cyclone Jack Ketchell and George Alger. The eight has Frankie Ryan of Everett and Young Felvey as the battlers, while the opener will bring together Jack O'Leary of Cambridge and Pete Norton of Roxbury.

NEWTON IS PICKED AS FINALIST

Massachusetts State Captain Meets Merriman in Semi-Final at Pinehurst

By ROBERT E. HARLOW.

Pinehurst, N. C., March 5.—John Stockwell of Woodland says he is sick of being beaten at Pinehurst by old men, cripples and boys. He says that his opponent in the second round of match play in the fifth flight the Spring tournament couldn't drive as far as he could putt the shot. But Stockwell was on the short end of a 3 and 2 score, nevertheless.

The Woodland golfer's opponent was V. A. Seggerman of Englewood, N. J., one of the Tin Whistles. The Tin Whistles are the regulars who visit Pinehurst every Winter and spend a number of weeks here. They are all experts with the putter, and use this club when one foot or 100 yards from the hole. Seggerman played out of a trap with a putter, in his match with Stockwell.

Massachusetts had eleven players left in the seventeen divisions when semi-final rounds were contested over course two today. One of the number, P. C. Newton of Brookline, was in the first flight and met Buck Merriman, the former Yale team captain. Sam Graham of Greenwich met Charles Messman of Ardsley in the other semi-final bracket of the first flight. Newton and Graham were picked to go into the final round.

Newton Beats Whitcomb, Shooting a 76

Newton beat Billy Whitcomb of Worcester in the second round. He shot a 76, while Graham won his second round match easily by shooting a 75.

Stanley Brennan of Worcester was a semi-finalist in the third division, and met N. W. Peters of Englewood. Brennan put out his club mate, Dr. A. E. Fero, in the second round.

The defeat of Stockwell by Seggerman and his well-tuned putter, put Massachusetts out of the running in the fifth division, but C. K. Harry, Jr., of Worcester, beat his clubmate, L. A. Wheeler, in the sixth division and continued in the running today.

Three of the survivors in the seventh division were Massachusetts men, F. P. Lee of Framingham, J. H. Herring of New Bedford and E. J. Frost of Woodland. Frost withdrew today.

Wind Aided Pinehurst Regulars to Win

Second-round matches were played under conditions which were very favorable to the Pinehurst regulars, for there was considerable wind. The old timers, many in fifties, had much push to give their long approach putts when the wind is high or low and they were getting down in two from within fifty yards of the pin, as usual. Those not familiar with the needed three or four after they got within putting distance.

Parker Whittemore of Brookline, considered the best golfer here, played an exhibition match with Mrs. Ronald M. Harlow and Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, and won three up, with a medal score of 75. Whittemore seldom enters the tournaments,

Meadowbrook Stars for A. A. U. Meet

New York, March 5.—The entries of seven star athletes of the Meadowbrook Club of Philadelphia have been received by the A. A. U. for the National indoor track and field championships which are to be decided in the 22nd Regiment armory, March 13.

Although there is but one former National title holder on the team, each member of it has placed well up in National and Intercollegiate championship contests. The team consists of the following: Harold Barron, for the 70-yard hurdles; Ferdinand Motley and Harold Ralney, sprinters; Andrew Risler, who took second to Harry Heims of Buffalo in the National junior two-mile; Robert Piddam, who has a record of 6 feet 2 inches in the running high jump; Elwood Bushy, who took second place in the National junior standing broad jump championship.

Baseball Clearing Up Not Yet Ended

By HUGH S. FULLERTON.

Met a bunch of ball players the other day on their way to the South, and one thing that came up was enlightening. It constitutes a glaring revelation of some of the big problems that confront baseball club owners and perhaps a warning against the mistakes that are being made.

We were discussing the [illegible] trade of New York ball players for those on a western team, which may or may not have been true. At any rate one ball player remarked:

"Sure it'll come off. I knew it last September."

"How did you know it?"

"Well, I talked with two fellows in that team and they were all primed to get onto the Giants. I don't know whether anything had been said to them or not, but they figured that they could work it so as to get sold or traded to the Giants."

Now whether they "worked it" or not, or whether anything wrong was done, this shows the conditions. If ball players are at liberty to hold out on their teams, to make exorbitant demands of money and force the clubs that are weaker financially to sell them to the rich clubs, the condition is one that will do inestimable harm to baseball. In fact, it is tantamount to disrupting the weak clubs and practically conceding championships to those that have big bank rolls.

It takes that not many of the fans would pay to see Charley Stoneham and Bill Wrigley match rolls to see which was the championship.

Baseball Cleaning Up Not Yet Over

However, conditions in baseball are considerably fumigated and the chances are that the cleaning process is not yet over. The club owners are taking a rather dangerous and a trifle cowardly course in handing these delicate matters. The chief point, however, is that they seem to have determined to clean up the sport and get rid of the men against whom they have found cause for suspicion.

I am informed that the owners have proceeded very carefully and that the players will not be left a legal leg on which to stand if they want to push to court with alleged wrongs and grievances.

The plan of the owners evidently is to evade entirely making any charges against anyone, and also they desire to avoid the chance that some player may charge them with boycotting. I am told that in cases where the services of a player are not at all desired, to put it mildly, the owner simply chopped the salary down as low as possible and forwarded a contract. The players, of course, immediately returned the contracts with demands for more money, whereupon the owners filed away the letters and refused to sign. If those players claim contracts were not offered, they will be confronted with the proof that they were offered jobs and refused them.

The chief trouble is that if any player quits without full explanation of his quitting, the fans may think he too belongs to the undesirables.

In the matter of the chairmanship of the National Commission, the baseball powers have been wonderfully slow. I am informed that the job was offered to "Big Bill" Edwards of New York, the famous old Princeton football player and one of the greatest sportsmen in America, who now is Collector of Internal Revenue in New York. The offer was made to him during a recent visit of Ban Johnson to New York.

Weather Conditions at Training Camps Bad

The only thing I am told, that prevented the immediate selection of Edwards was salary. The sum offered him was very low, much under the figure according to reports, which was paid to Garry Herrmann. I understand Edwards was willing to accept the position and devote all his time to its duties after clearing up the present income tax, but not at the figure named to him.

It is rather queer that Babe Ruth is worth $124,500—and organized baseball can pay only $13,000 to a man who is a national figure and one who has the force, the courage and the personality to clean the game and keep it clean.

Early reports from the Spring training camps are not very encouraging. Weather conditions have been bad throughout the South for the last three weeks and the prospects are for a slow start, which, however, is not half commenced to get into condition.

Reports on the [illegible] are all encouraging. The others with the various teams have not yet discovered a pitcher with a new kind of curve.

B. C. Football Man to Coach B. U.

[illegible] against Boston College team at University Heights next Fall. George Brown, director of athletics at the downtown institution, has offered the position of coach to two members of last Fall's B. C. machine who will graduate next June.

The two men are Tom Keaton and Jack Sheehan, both members of the senior class at the Heights. Keaton played fullback on the B. C. team, while Sheehan held down a tackle position, and both have been first-string men during their four years in college.

Gloucester, March 5.—Gloucester's team was unable to cope with the fast playing of the West End K. of C. team at Gloucester, going down to defeat, 54 to 30.

SCHOOL MEET ON TOMORROW

Sixty Teams Will Take Part in Twenty-Five Races at East Armory

The second annual Massachusetts State Relay Carnival will be held tomorrow at the East Armory. More than sixty State high school teams are entered and the program will consist of twenty-five races in the three distances. Two junior races will be 44 yards to a man, the intermediates will each run 176 yards. The senior events will have both one and two lap races, the one lap will be 176 yards to a man and the two will be 352 yards.

In the senior division there will be [illegible] entered in the quarter-mile relay for the final heat. The team finishing second place in their heat and also making the best time for the second place winners will also be admitted to the final heat. Four teams will be in the final heat.

GOOD TEAMS IN FIRST RACE.

The teams will bring together several fine teams. The first heat should be the best of them all, with Lynn Classical on the pole and East Boston in No 2 place. West Roxbury and Boston Trade School will also be in the first heat. Lynn Classical is favored to win this heat, while East Boston in second place should make fast enough time to admit them to the final heat. Lynn Classical tied Medford High School in the Huntington School meet for the best time.

East Boston High relay team won the State title in the senior division last year and have three of last season's runners again in the lineup Billy Nolan, the star of last year's East Boston team, is the only one missing from the championship team.

In the second heat Hyde Park will have the pole, with Medford H gh, the favorite in this heat, in No 4 place Brookline High and Winthrop are the other two teams in this heat.

Newton High should be the favorite in the third heat. Dorchester, Lynn English and the High School of Commerce are the other contestants in this heat.

Final Should Be Classy Heat

The final heat should bring together four classy teams which should furnish all the thrill that could be expected. The most probable teams in the final heat are Lynn Classical, Newton High, Medford High and East Boston High. Lynn Classical High School and Medford High, the teams with the best time in the recent meet at the Huntington School are the foremost contenders for the State senior rifle title.

In the junior and intermediate divisions two teams will qualify in the trial heats, which will leave eight in the final heat. Boston Latin, the winner of the junior championship last season, is not entered in the meet.

BOSTON 'Y' FIVE BEATS CAMBRIDGE QUINTET

Cambridge "Y" after winning eighteen straight games, met a tartar in the Boston "Y" team at the latter team's court and was overwhelmed 55 to 16. In the second attraction the "Y" Intermediates won from Norwood High, 37 to 20, and the "Y" Employed Boys won their eighteenth straight game by defeating the Norwood High seconds, 23 to 16.

Four boxing bouts and a basketball game were the events contested at Fort Banks, North Harbor, between representatives of Fort Banks and Fort Rodman, New Bedford, in the first of a series of contests arranged to determine athletic champions of the Northeast Division of the United States Coast Defence Athletic League.

Fort Rodman's boxers proved superior in three of the four classes, but in the basketball game the Boston Harbor team was in the right of way after the first few baskets and won by the comfortable score of 40 to 28.

FROM STOCKHOLM, SWEDEN, TO BOSTON, MASS.

The Alden Woolen Co. of New York sends a representative to my Boston store with bills purporting to be the original bills of lading of an immense stock of goods sold on Sept. 5, 1919, by their concerns, through the banking agency of Cohen Bros. Manufacturing Co., Inc., for exportation to Stockholm, Sweden; a bill of goods amounting to approximately $20,000. This was bought on prices of September, 1919. They were shipped across, and, through some hokus-pokus the goods were brought back to America. Whether it was money or death, we have conflicting statements.

I buy these goods 25% less than the market price September, 1919. They consist, according to the statement of the Alden Woolen Co., of Hockanum Worsteds, French River Worsteds, Globe Mills goods of Utica, N. Y., William Whitman serges and Garo serges, American Woolen Co.'s worsteds, and a general line of merchandise such as a clothing manufacturer could use in Sweden or North America.

A Story of Extraordinary Mystery and Deep Power

THE YOUNG DIANA

AN EXPERIMENT OF THE FUTURE

Romantic Heroine Holds Keys to Youth and Beauty

Narration of Life, Dark, but Still Fascinating

By MARIE CORELLI,

Author of "Thelma," "Ardath," "The Life Everlasting," "Innocent," "Barabbas," Etc.

CHAPTER I.

ONCE upon a time, in earlier and less congested days of literary effort, an Author was accustomed to address the Public as "Gentle Reader." It was a civil phrase, implying a courteous attitude of patient listening, and one might fairly suppose that the Author's confidential remarks would be received with benevolent attention. Nowadays, however, the Author's timid approach might perhaps be met with the curt interjection, "Cut it short!" or, at the most charitable, "Get on with it!" Consequently, the Author, if he be wise, plunges right into his subject at once, and tells his story as briefly as possible. That is the best way to prepare a book for the hasty reading of the modern friendly interlocutor.

Now I must confess that with my practical understanding, and as I am assured by my friends, my considerable powers of understanding, and as I am assured by my friends, my considerable powers of intuition, I find it quite impossible to treat what every person of merely average intelligence is likely to regard as an incredible narrative, I think it as well to begin politely in the old-fashioned "grand manner of appeal, which is half apologetic and half conciliatory. "Gentle Reader," therefore, I pray you to be friends with me! Do not lose either patience or temper while following the strange adventures of a very strange woman—though in case you should be disappointed in seeking for what you will not find, let me say at once that my story is not of the Sex Problem type. No! My heroine is not perverted from the paths of decency and order, or drawn to a bad end, in fact, I cannot bring her to an end at all, as she is still very much alive and doing uncommonly well for herself. Any end for Diana would seem not only incongruous, but man festly impossible.

Like a Stage

I suppose we all know, in a curious kind of way, that life is like a stage play with no finish—the one condition the other train. The way we look at it depends on the way it looks at us. Some of us have seen it on both sides, and are neither edified nor impressed.

Then, again—life is a series of "sensations." We who live now are always describing life. They who lived long ago did the same. It seemed to them as if they have ever found it in other and brighter better times. Those who visited Ancient Rome and Greece, and the heads of human nature to the world, horrified and wondered how people could find their time on this planet exhilarating sensations and relating their experiences to one another, and telling him or her little tales of woe in a different way.

So anxious were they, and so anxious are we, to explain the special and individual manner in which our mental and physical vibrations respond to the particular circumstances in which we find ourselves that all systems of religion, government, science, art and philosophy have been, and are, ruthlessly torn and boiled out of the pans and possessions of a race of men who, "feeling deeply and thinking exceedingly," are for ever trying to express their feelings to each other.

Faith and Logic

These feelings they designate by various catch names such as "faith," "logic," "reason," "opinion," "wisdom," and so forth, and upon these they build temporary fabrics of law and order, vastly solid in appearance, yet collapsible as a house of cards, and crumbling at a touch, while every now and again there comes a sudden, unlooked-for interruption to their advancement and plans—a kind of dark pause and suggestion of chaos, such as a great war, a plague or other unwelcome visitation of God," or, as I feel inclining, almost cause, or else people are too frightened to talk about them. They are chilled into nervous silence and wait, afflicted by fear and discouragement, till the cloud passes and the sun appears. Then the spiritual buds of "feeling" begins again to the mixed bags and trellis of convention and retrolling—a kind of [illegible] things without harmony. Natural Nature has no part in [illegible] Man is the only creature that refuses to explain the phenomena of existence.

My heroine, Diana Mar[illegible], wondered. She was always wondering. She spent weeks, months, and years, in a chronic state of wonder. She wondered about herself and several [illegible] people, who are thought to be [illegible] and those several other people's sons and [illegible] future [illegible] were the general theme of [illegible] and time, with [illegible] [illegible], to account for these.

But though she read books on science, books on psychology, books on natural and spiritual law, and studied complex problems of evolution and selection of species till her poor dim eyes grew dimmer, and the lines from nose to chin became ever more [illegible] deeper, she could discover no way to reason the three legs of a [illegible] She was an absurd problem in a way, but she did not know why she came [illegible] she was to be got out.

The Young Diana and the Cup of Eternal Youth

Her father and mother were what are called "very well-to-do people," with a pleasantly suburban reputation for respectability and regular church attendance. Mr. James Polydore-May—this was his name in full, as engraved on his visiting card—was a small man in stature, but in self-complacency the biggest one alive. He had made a considerable fortune in a certain manufacturing business which need not here be specified, and he had speculated with it in a shrewd and careful manner which was not without a touch of genius, the happy result being that he had always gained and never lost. Now at the age of sixty, he was free from all financial care, and could rattle gold and silver in his trousers-pockets with a sense of pleasure in their clinking sound—they had the sameness of church bells which proclaim the pure neatness of a prosperous town.

Not Bad Looking

He was not a bad-looking little veteran—he had, as he was fond of saying of himself, "a good chest measurement," and though his legs were short, they were not bandy. Inclined to corpulence, the two lower buttons of his waistcoat were generally left undone, that he might the more easily stretch himself after a full meal.

His physiognomy was not so much intelligent as pugnacious—his bushy eyebrows, hair and moustache gave him at certain moments the look of an irascible old terrier. He had keen, small eyes, coming close to the bridge of a rather pronounced Israelitish nose, and to these characteristics was added a generally assertive air—an air which went before him like an advancing atmosphere, heralding his approach as a "somebody"—that sort of atmosphere which invariably accompanies nobodies. His admiration of the fair sex was open and never always discreet, and from his youth up he had believed himself capable of subjugating any and every woman. He had an agreeable "first manner" of his own on introduction—a manner which was absolutely deceptive, giving no clew to the uglier side of his nature. His wife could have told whole stories about this "first manner" of his, had she not long ago given up the attempt to retain any hold on her own individuality.

She had been a woman of average intelligence when she married him—commonplace, certainly, but good-natured and willing to make the best of everything; needless to say that the [illegible] of youth vanished with the first years of wedded life (as they are apt to do), and she finally sank into a [illegible] by condition of resigned nonentity, seeing there was nothing else left for her.

The dull, tame tenor of her days had once been interrupted by the birth of her only child Diana, who as long as she was small and young, and while she was being educated under the usual system of governesses and schools, was an object of delight, affection, amusement and interest, and who, when she grew up and "came out" at eighteen as a graceful, pretty girl of the freshest type of English beauty, gave her mother something to live and to live for—but alas!—Diana had proved the bitterest of her disappointments. The "coming-out" business, the balls, the race-meetings and other matrimonial traps had been set in vain—the training, the music, the dancing, the "toilettes"—had failed to attract—and Diana had not married.

She had fallen in love, as most girls do before they know much about men—and she had engaged herself to an officer with "expectations" for whom, with a romantic devotion as out of date as the poems of Chaucer, she had waited for seven long years in a resigned condition of alarming constancy—and then, when his "expectations" were realized, he had promptly thrown her over for a fairer and younger partner.

By that time Diana was what is called "getting on." All this had tried the temper of Mrs. James Polydore May considerably—and she took refuge from her many vexations in the pleasures of the table and the consolations of sleep. The result of this mode of procedure was that she became corpulent and unwieldy—her original self was swallowed up in a sort of feathered of adipose tissue, from which she peered out on the world with protruding, lustreless eyes, the tip of her small nose seeming to protest feebly against the injustice of being well-nigh walled from sight between the massive flabby cheeks on either side of its never classic and distinctly parsimonious proportions. With oversleep and overeating she had matured into a stupid and somewhat obstinate woman, with a habit of saying unmeaningly nice or nasty things—the attempt to retain any hold on her own individuality

The Theme of This Book Is of Vital Importance to All

Only His Goods

Her chief interest and attention were centred on eatables, and she always made a point of going to breakfast in advance of her husband, so that she might select for herself the most succulent morsels out of the regulation dish of fried bacon, before he had a chance to look in. Husband and wife were always arguing with each other, and both were always wrong in each other's opinion. Mrs. James Polydore May considered her worser half as something of a wayward and peevish child, and he in turn looked upon her as a useful domestic female—"perfectly simple and natural," he was wont to say, a statement which, if true, would have been vastly convenient to him as he could then have deceived her more easily.

But "deeper than ever plummet sounded" was the "simplicity" wherewith Mrs. James Polydore May was endowed, and the "natural" way in which she managed to secure her own comfort, convenience and ease while assuming to be the most guileless and unselfish of women. Indeed there were times when she was fairly astonished at herself for having "arranged things so cleverly," as she expressed it. Whenever a woman of type a dmits to having "arranged things cleverly" you may be sure that the most astute lawyer alive could never surpass her in the height or the depth of her duplicity.

What's In a Name?

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Copyright 1919, The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

SUSAN

SUSAN first came to light as a feminine name in the guise of Schuschannah, meaning a lily. It belonged to one of the holy women of the sepulchre and was likewise in the calendar for two virgin martyrs by the name of Susanna, who suffered in the times of persecution, though they were never commemorated in the western church.

Queen Susanna, "the Lily of Tiflis," also died a martyr in the land of Mahomet, though Susan and its derivatives may well be said to be a holy name.

Susanna was the beautiful and virtuous wife of Joachim in the Apocryphal "History of Susanna." Her chastity questioned by certain Jewish elders, she was condemned by law, but her innocence was proved by Daniel and her accusers put to death.

The name and its derivatives are popular throughout England, France and Switzerland. It becomes Susie in Scotland, where Jamieson's popular songs give a Scottish version of the story of Becket's parents and the Eastern maiden is introduced:

"This Moor he had but as daughter,
Her name was called Susie Frye;
And every day as she took the air,
Near Belchem's prison gaed she by."

The English diminutive for Susan is Sue and Sukey; France has called her Suzette and Suzanne; in Switzerland the name appears as Zora and Zonie, and Germany claims Susanne, Suschen and Sese. Perhaps the quaintest derivative is the Bavarian popular name, Sanri.

The sapphire, with its mysterious depths, is the jewel which superstition links with the destiny of Susan. It has the power to preserve the wearer from harm, protect her from storms and [illegible], and attract divine favor for its owner. To dream of sapphires is a sign of a journey. Thursday should be a fortunate day for the wearer of a sapphire and two her lucky number.

TOO BEAUTIFUL TO BE GOOD

Divorced Wife Fled with Oil Magnate While Husband Was in Trenches

By Universal Service.

Paterson, N. J., March 5.—"My beauty was fatal, my good looks were a detriment to my being a good wife."

These words were contained in a letter introduced in court here in the undefended divorce case of Sergeant James W. McGlade against his wife, Anita, a young woman of unusual beauty.

Mrs. McGlade, who was said to have written the letter as a warning to young girls possessed of personal charm, admitted that she had deserted her husband to become "the pampered doll" of a millionaire oil speculator, expressed the hope that other good looking girls would avoid pitfalls through knowledge of her case.

Sergeant McGlade charged that upon his return from France he learned that his wife had fled with a Gary, Indiana, oil speculator, leaving her child, who is now six, with her grandmother "to care for a few hours." McGlade was given custody of the child and a decree in his favor was recommended.

Instantly that troublesome corn or callus stops hurting, then shortly you lift it out, root and all, without any pain, soreness or irritation. Careless Shampooing Spoils the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any pharmacy. It's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—Advertisement.

A Skin Tightener to Reduce Wrinkles

In beauty culture, as in the treatment of physical ailments, the tendency nowadays is to seek the removal of causes, rather than to treat symptoms or effects. In the matter of wrinkles, for instance, we know that the lines or furrows are caused by the skin becoming loose in places, so that it does not fit the flesh beneath. The skin then "wrinkles" up. Naturally the proper thing to do is to tighten the skin—make it firm—then there's no room for lines, wrinkles and folds, and no reason skin to sag or bag.

The best known formula for the purpose is: Saxolite, one ounce, dissolved in one-half pint of witch-hazel. You can procure these ingredients from any druggist. The effect is truly remarkable, especially if done at once. Almost immediately. Ask the druggist for powdered saxolite, and dissolve it yourself. Advertisement.

CORPORATE FINANCING LARGE IN FEBRUARY

High money rates and a generally unfavorable money market did not prevent corporate financing in February for a large total. New issues of railroad, public utility and industrial companies aggregated $267,642,585 as compared with $168,254,700 for the corresponding 1919 month. For January this year such financing totalled $422,639,415.

The issues of industrial securities amounted to $233,203,185, making a total of $587,127,000 for the first two months of 1920. Railroad refunding financing was all in bonds and totalled $10,272,000, while public utility issues aggregated $24,167,400.

Pipe Line Oil Receipts

Pipe line oil receipts in Oklahoma and Kansas during January totalled 10,587,963 barrels, a decrease from December's aggregate of 302,331 barrels, while deliveries amounted to 11,007,086 barrels, an increase of 135,033 barrels. Pipe line stocks in all divisions at the end of January had increased 614,413 during the month, according to Oil City Derrick statistics.

MOTOR ISSUES ARE LEADERS

Oils Make Good Gains; Steels and Rails Lag Behind

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were strong in New York at noon, the market having retained in the main the improvement shown at the opening. Hot prices ruled below the morning highest and a few issues, including steels, rails and equipment, were under the opening level. Motors led the market for gains and were closely followed by the oils. Trading was active, first hour transactions totalling almost 400,000 shares. Call money renewed at 9 per cent. Sterling exchange was quoted as high as $3.63.

Stocks to show the largest gains at noon included General Motors, Studebaker, Pierce Arrow, Stutz, Mexican Petroleum, Texas Co., Royal Dutch, Sumatra, Cadanian Pacific, U. S. Rubber, Goodrich. Marine preferred and Steel preferred. They were up from one to more than seven points.

MARKET HAD STRONG START.

The market had a strong start, the stocks which are speculative leaders in the rubber, oils and motors, advancing from fractions to about two points on initial sales. The demand came chiefly from those who are seeking cover, although there was some outside demand. Gains of many were increased before the movement halted. When demand slackened the market paused, but did not recet. It was strong at the end of the first hour and awaiting a new impulse. While many rates are high and no reduction of consequence is looked for for ten days or a fortnight at the earliest, brokers' loans have been curtailed so radically that there is no disposition on the part of bankers to force further deflation. A very large proportion of the securities purchased on speculation are now all paid for and in the hands of interests determined to hold them until times are more propitious. The market has been oversold no doubt and is being helped by technical readjustments.

RAILS SLOW TO RESPOND.

Railroads are back under private control and a new law which is generally conceded to be advantageous to owners is operative. But securities of carriers are lagging and other industrials. It will take a long time to restore confidence in rails on the part of investors, and with manufacturing, shipping and many other issues offering such a broad and inviting field for the activities of speculators there is little inducement for the latter to take hold of railroads. It is difficult indeed to start a bull market for anything that the public does not banker for. Secondarily, a

If married and living with wife (or husband) on December 31, 1919, a return is required in any case where the joint net income of husband and wife, plus the earnings of minor dependent children, if any, was $2,000 or more.

The actual compensation must be ascertained and must include overtime, bonuses, shares in the profits of a business, value of quarters and board if furnished as part of salary and any other items which are compensations for services.

An unmarried person's exemption is $1,000; a married couple's exemption is $2,000; the head of a family, though unmarried, may claim $2,000; and there is further exemption of $200 for each dependent under 18 years of age or who is incapacitated.

Returns and payments must reach the collector of Internal Revenue by March 15, 1920.

Income Tax Extension Given Corporation

Washington, March 5.—Because of the complexity of the requirements for filing corporation income tax returns, the Treasury Department announced an extension from March 15 to May 15, for the filing of consolidated statements. The instructions sent to collectors of internal revenue follow:

"In view of the fact that considerable difficulty is being experienced by corporations and their representatives in the preparation of income tax returns for the calendar year 1919, you are hereby authorized to accept tentative returns on or before March 15, 1920, which may be accompanied by at least one-fourth of the estimated amount of tax due, together with a statement setting forth the reason why the return cannot be completed within the prescribed time and a formal request for the extension.

"An extension of time is hereby granted to corporations in such cases to file completed returns on or before May 15, 1920. Only the estimated amount of tax due need be stated."

Only in exceptional cases will an extension beyond May 15 be allowed, it was stated.

U. S. TRUST CO. HOLDS BANQUET

President Ratshesky Presented With Silver Cup at 25th Birthday Celebration

The presentation to A. C. Ratshesky, president of the United States Trust Company, of a silver cup by the board of directors, was a feature of the "twenty-fifth birthday party" of the institution, held in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Somerset.

The presence of guests, including many officers of the bank, a vaudeville performance given by employes, and a decoration scheme of dazzling brilliancy which included a gigantic "birthday cake," made the affair intensely interesting.

Toastmaster Ellis Ames Ballard, in the evening, former Governor John L. Bates, in a brief address following the banquet which opened festivities, declared the record made by the United States Trust Company was one of the most remarkable in American banking history.

His read a telegram from I. A. Ratshesky, treasurer of the organization, now in California, expressing regret at being unable to attend the function.

PILLSBURY PRESENTS CUP.

In introducing President A. C. Ratshesky, ex-Governor Bates paid him a glowing tribute as the man to whose untiring and conscientious work the institution owed a large share of its prosperity in the past.

"We should be grateful tonight," said President Ratshesky, "for that spirit of good-fellowship and co-operation which has been the keynote of a feature of the United States Trust Company.

I want to thank every man and woman who has helped, by devoted service, to give us the prestige which we enjoy today."

Ratshesky expressed the deepest gratitude to the "boys and girls" of the bank for their gift to him on the twenty-fifth anniversary of the institution.

He credited J. Howard Edwards, member of the board of directors, and chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements for the affair, with the success of the "birthday party."

Edwards spoke briefly, reviewing the progress of the company, and praising the work of his fellow-directors.

Exattorney-General Albert E. Pillsbury was enthusiastic over the gift of the silver cup presentation speech. The cup, inscribed with the names of the directors, and flanked by two American beauty roses was engraved with the following names: A. E. Pillsbury, A. C. Ratshesky, Edward Avery, William A. Bancroft, John L. Bates, Fred S. High, George F. Schraft, Edward W. Cummings, Charles A. Pastene, Henry P. Tilden, Charles H. Sherburne, John Cotton Dalph, Arthur Ehrlich, Fred H. Roberts, Sidney F. Shuman, Paul C. Fitzpatrick, Edwin F. Forbes, Edward McLean, J. Howard Edwards, William F. Garcelon, J. R. Morse, S. E. Hecht, Felix Taussig, Leon Strauss, Frank L. Young and J. Samuel Hodge.

SHOWER OF PENNIES.

The guests of honor were seated at the centre table, in the midst of which a fountain, surrounded by white sugar stood, illuminated by twenty-five tall candles and by a bright sunlight. On top of a large globe was placed. Mirrors arranged in various parts of the room and innumerable rosettes and gilded ornamentation, completed the structure.

At a given signal white ribbons were pulled and a swarm of artificial doves were released, bearing on their backs souvenirs of birthday and vaudeville acts, while a shower of pennies was scattered over the table.

A novel part of the entertainment was reached when a crowd of "newsies" rushed into the hall, with "Extras" giving news of the bank personnel, photographs, and an account of the party, in spoved newspaper form.

The vaudeville performance was given an elaborate temporary stage erected at one end of the hall. It consisted of a large number of acts which satirized phases of banking activity, and the various artists presented by the company. The programs were in form of "Good Fellowship Bonds," and each banquet guest left the vaudeville act was noted on a "coupon."

The entertainment is under the direction of E. J. Goulston.

Major Urges Courtesy to Army Recruits

"Treat the recruit courteously when he arrives at the post," Major Michael J. Moore, recruiting officer at army headquarters, urges. "The one and only way to be coddled or petted, but he ought to receive such treatment that will make him feel he is part of the working force.

"The recruit who has manliness and discipline developed by your co-operation in a few months will give the impression that a real soldierly atmosphere is being created for the new recruits to make him feel fit at ease and to make him unhappy by unnecessary treasons. Golds him in an unmanly manner is not what makes a soldier contented with the service he undertakes and it is not part of a soldier's training."

Measures That Would Cure Most of the Troubles and Tendencies Which Distress and Alarm Us Today

(1) To nominate for the Presidency by direct nomination and to elect by popular vote.
(2) To elect the Cabinet officers and make them responsible to Congress.
(3) To deprive the President of the power of patronage; to put public offices as nearly as possible under Civil Service, and have appointments made by a committee of Congress.
(4) To elect Federal Judges, including Supreme Court Justices, by popular vote.
(5) To apply the Initiative, the Referendum and the Recall to national matters.

Shall Military Discipline Be Arbitrary or Based on Justice?

Our recent adventure into war uncovered no situation more shocking than the false basis and antiquated procedure of so-called military justice.

The existing system of courts-martial is a stench.

It is largely the code that governed Caesar's legions and the armies of Gustavus Adolphus.

It is almost word for word the articles that governed in the time of Richard II., and it is word for word and letter for letter—with a few recent unsubstantial changes—the military code of England as it existed at the time of our separation from her, in 1775, which code was itself of much more uncertain origin.

Since then England has very much liberalized her code; France, dependent as she is upon the support of her people for her national defence, has the most liberal of military codes; and we, presumably the most liberal nation on earth, have a code that out-Prussians the Prussians.

The ordinances of Richard II. presented this view, which until now the American government has adopted:

The army is the army of the King, to be disciplined by him and his commanders under his ordinances and AT HIS PLEASURE.

Under the existing system of American army discipline the rule of the commander is absolute, based on no fixed principles which he cannot disregard, and is subject to modification only by executive clemency. Under varying commanders like offences are punished with widely varying sentences.

The citizen as a civilian has the benefit of a judicial code which describes with definiteness the nature of the offence for which he can be indicted, prescribes uniform penalties and requires recognition of rules of procedure under which the accused has full opportunity to confront his accusers, challenge their testimony and receive the benefit of every doubt. In the event of conviction he has the right to appeal on claim of error or upon the claim of newly discovered evidence. And he has always the chance for clemency, with no tradition construing it as a reflection upon the judge at trial.

But when he steps from democratic civil life into the military uniform all these safeguards vanish. He assumes at once the practical status of a serf. His liberty, his very life, then depends, not upon guaranteed rights, but upon the whim of his commanding officer.

Clemency extended after a vicious system perpetrates shocking injustice does not establish justice. It merely salves a raw wound.

To his lasting credit, Samuel T. Ansell, while acting as judge advocate-general, was so moved by the injustices inhering in the system of present army discipline that he jeopardized his job in an effort to have that system revised.

The reactionaries in the War Department, with the aid of their ilk elsewhere, have thus far defeated this movement for liberal revision. But this week will bring another testing of the issue in Congress. The Chamberlain-Johnson bill, embodying modern ideals, will be moved as an amendment of the Army Reorganization Act. Its basic provisions are these:

(1) It requires that a charge shall be preferred under oath. A soldier has the right to make oath to an accusation as well as an officer. All offenses are defined.

(2) Thorough investigation must precede the forwarding of the charge for trial. Trivial charges are winnowed out for settlement by minor courts.

(3) Each court must have a judge-advocate skilled in the law, to be the judge of the law. Provision is made for adequate counsel. Enlisted men must be on courts trying enlisted men. Courts and judge-advocate shall be subservient to no commander.

(4) Challenges for cause and peremptory challenges are both allowed, and in addition challenges to the array when based on affidavits of prejudice.

(5) Verdicts shall require a two-thirds vote in special court and a three-fourths vote in the general court.

(6) Appeal is on error to a court of civilian judges. This court may also review for clemency.

(7) The bill establishes legal guidance of court proceedings from beginning to end and penalizes non-compliance.

If you want to know who the real democrats in Congress are, who the men are who believe in equal and exact justice for all, watch the vote upon this amendment.

Especially should former soldiers watch. For they KNOW the issue.

Cape Cod Canal Should Not Be Closed

The American neither expresses nor entertains any opinion concerning the controversy between the United States government and the owners of the Cape Cod Canal over the price which the government shall pay for the canal.

Whatever the merits of the dispute may be concerning the price, it is perfectly clear that shutting down the canal at any time and especially at the very hour of our great transportation collapse is not within the rules of the trading game.

The canal ought never to be closed even when its closing would work the least hardship for New England. The canal is of great economic value to us. Even if it had not been particularly valuable before we became adjusted to its use and depended upon it in normal times, it has become of great value to us now because we have adjusted our economic relations and depend upon it.

It is perfectly easy to continue the operation of the canal by some working agreement between the parties if they really are as sensitive to the public interest as they ought to be in this situation. Where there is a will there is certainly a way.

More Truth Than Poetry

The Cheerful Word

By S. E. KISER

HE was a care-free optimist who never frowned or fretted;
He left the worrying for those to whom he was indebted;
"Cheer up," he said when other men came, asking him to settle;
"Some day I'll get a raise again and be in splendid fettle."
They threatened him and hounded him,
But, always with a smile,
Whenever they surrounded him,
He promised, "After while."

HE spoke about a brighter day when prices would be cheaper,
And, deep in debt, he managed still to get a little deeper;
To those who came to dun he said: "Tomorrow may be sunny,
And he that gives you hope gives more than he that gives you money."
The profiteers, refusing him
The credit that he sought,
Found solace in abusing him,
But, smiling, he forgot.

A CIGARETTE was dropped, one day, among some dusty shavings;
The people who had overcharged lost all their wicked savings;
Forth stepped the cheerful optimist, a smile upon his features;
He watched the howling profiteers and pitied the poor creatures.
"Too bad that you were pitiless"
It was a tender touch—
"If you had charged a little less
You'd not have lost so much."

By K. C. B.

HE'S A friend of mine.
AND I'M sorry to say.
THAT THERE are times.
WHEN HE comes downtown.
TO HIS business place.
WITH A terrible grouch.
AND IT just so happens.
THAT A week ago.
I RAN into him.
ONE FOGGY morn.
ALONG ABOUT ten.
AS HE left his car.
OUTSIDE THE building.
WHERE HIS office is.
AND I hadn't seen him.
FOR QUITE a while.
AND HE shook my hand.
AND IN spite of a grouch.
THAT HE'D brought along.
HE ASKED me up.
AND WE made our way.
THROUGH AN outer office.
FILLED WITH clerks.
AND TELEPHONE girls.
AND TYPEWRITER girls.
AND OFFICE boys.
TO AN inner place.
WHERE HE had his desk.
AND A boy was there.
AND WAS straightening things.
ON THE boss' desk.
AND THE boss asked the boy.
WHY HE was there.
AND THE boy said.
HE WAS "straighteinin' things."
AND THE boss told the boy,
TO GET right out.
AND THEN he stopped him.
AND WANTED to know.
HOW OLD he was.
AND HE said he was twelve.
AND THE boss then asked.
WHY HE wasn't in school,
AND THE boy answered back.
THAT HE had to work.
THAT HIS father was dead.
THAT HE'D worked in the shipyards.
AND HAD been killed.
AND FURTHER questions.
BROUGHT OUT the fact.
THAT HE was the oldest.
OF A family of five.
AND HIS mother worked.
AND WITH this all told.
HE FINISHED his "straighteinin'."
AND WENT on out.
AND JUST last night.
AT 8 o'clock.
I CALLED on the grouch.
AND MET the boy.
AND TALKED to him.
AND HE'D quit his job.
AND ON the next day.
HE WAS going to school.
AND WHEN I asked.
HOW THEY'D get along.
HE MADE reply.
"THE BOSS, he did it.
"AND MOTHER'S quit, too.
"AND DON'T work any more.
"EXCEPT AT home."
AND THAT'S all I know.
BECAUSE THE boss himself.
NEVER SAID a word.

I THANK you.

FRIENDS ARE MADE BY GIVE AND TAKE

By Mrs. Wilson Woodrow

WHY is a friend?

That is a question I have been pondering over quite a bit in the last week, because, to borrow a phrase from the stock market, there seems to be a decided bull movement in friendship just at present.

However that may be, I only know that for the past fortnight my correspondence has centred practically about that one question—the need and desire for a true friend.

The answer is of course, as with everything else: Go where friends are made.

You can't expect to turn out watches in a plough factory, or to bore for oil on Washington street, or raise artichokes in the desert.

Friendship is a plant born of propinquity or attraction between people who have a common aim or common interests.

We become friendly with others because we expect to gain something from them, either in advancement or enjoyment, or help of some kind; and unless those others see something in it for themselves they repulse or are indifferent to our advances. There must always be a quid pro quo. You must give in order to get.

A wide complaint I have found among many of my correspondents is that they have no field of the sort, no place where they may meet and become acquainted with congenial associates. In view of this phase of the question, it will be interesting to note the development of the project now afoot to turn the saloon — the so-called "poor man's club"—into community centres, real clubs for both men and women.

But, no matter what the opportunities, one thing is certain: you cannot sit back and expect friends to come to you. You must give of your heart and soul and self. By a paradox, friendship born of self-interest reaches its true estate only when self-interest is forgotten.

Letters to the Editor

Firemen's Bill

Editor Boston American:

As a veteran of the world war and now on the civil service list for the Boston Fire Department, I want, through your valuable paper, to enter my protest against the bill to re-examine retired members of the Boston Fire Department and put them back on duty if pronounced O. K. by a doctor selected by the fire commissioner. It is a rank injustice to the men on the eligible list. I was surprised to learn that some of the retired members are now and have been working hard to put this bill through for the simple reason, as one of them put it: "We will have a chance to retire later on with a little more pension money on account of the recent raise in salary." M. C. K.

Evacuation Day Parade

Editor Boston American:

The excuse for not holding Evacuation Day parade the 17th of March is to my mind rather thin. The cost of cleaning the streets seems to be a part of the excuse, while the condition of the streets seems to be another reason. But to my mind the hand of England and her friends here is shown plainly. For what matter does the state of the streets affect the celebration of the driving out of the world's tyrant from America? It is purely an English move to eradicate the bitter memory of that event.

A CONSTANT READER.

Would Loosen Tie

Editor Boston American:

I have read with much satisfaction the account which appeared in your columns of the unanimous protest by the Tremont Temple Brotherhood against bringing back from France the bodies of American soldiers. To do so would, I think, be an injustice to the dead, a harrowing experience to their relatives, and the loosening of a tie which now binds us somewhat closer to another great nation. Colleges and Fools

Bisons and Chinese
No Angels Came

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Ogden Armour defends college education, although he gets along without it. Information is a pretty good substitute for education if you have enough. Armour says: "Colleges kill fools," meaning that he who enters college a fool comes out less of a fool. College life does produce an agreeable uniformity, which softens down fools, but uniformity is a mental curse. It enables you to bear a fine education for $25 a week.

You can best describe "college education" by saying of it what the Frenchman said about travel: "Travel forms youth, when it does not deform it."

If a man amounts to very little, college will help him if it does not deform him. It cannot hurt him much anyhow. High genius, however, could with difficulty go through a college course and survive. If Shakespeare had been a young Oxford man instead of being a poacher in the country and a worker for odd half pence in the city, he could not have been Shakespeare. There would not have been any Abraham Lincoln left, or not much, after four years of Harvard.

The "highest good fortune of earth's children is personality," as Goethe truly says. And college life is hard on personality.

Shaking coins up and down in a bag against each other wears off the sharp edges.

The price of bread goes up again. How often will you hear that? Workers get higher wages and soon goes into operation "the iron law," as Socialists call it. A worker gets a dollar more than those that don't work; the workers make it cost a dollar more to live.

Mr. Haskell, able vice-president of the International Paper Company, supplies to this writer "a statistic" proving that there is something the matter with our system of distribution. Mr. Haskell has a recipe for cooking pigs' feet inherited from Lucullus.

He cooks four at a time. Bought four on Broadway between 114th and 115th streets, and paid $1.35. By the way of experiment in political economy, he sent his boy to the Washington Market.

The boy brought back four pigs' feet of the same size, price for the four 25 cents. The man uptown had added about a thousand per cent. to a reasonable profit. It ought to be somebody's business to regulate continued profiteering.

In the far West trains used to be held up by bison herds, tens of thousands, sometimes.

In far Eastern China, train service is bothered by Chinese suicides throwing themselves under the wheels. Bisons and Chinese workers, desperate through poverty, lack of opium or general disgust with life, form an interesting contrast, cluttering up the wheels of steam engines in such different ways.

The Turks are to lose everything in Europe except the "holy places." This may cause the Turks to lose confidence in the efficiency of those "holy places" and arouse some justified haughtiness in the Christians. But it is simply the hour glass of history being turned upside down.

When the Turks marched into Constantinople, establishing themselves in Europe, four hundred and sixty-five years ago, they found magnificent Christian temples. The finest, St. Sophis, now a Mohammedan mosque, stood in a great square. As the Turks approached, murdering and burning, the Christians retired to that square.

They had been assured that when the time came, if the Turks appeared, angels with swords would appear also and dispose of the Turks.

But the angels never came, the Turks did come and disposed of the Christians. Who knows what may happen four hundred and sixty-five years from now if Asia comes back to life and the Turks again become leader? Old Constantinople, centre of ancient history, natural centre of civilization, perhaps, has seen strange days and probably will see many more.

Even in Turkey there is improvement. Homeless, starving dogs that made Constantinople streets hideous and dangerous have been driven out. Many were put on an island because Turkish religious feeling forbade killing them. On that island miserable dogs devoured each other. Pagan religions sometimes work that way.

Having got rid of the dogs in Constantinople, Turkish women have now got rid of their veils, another improvement in many cases. That is a change since the year 1830 when a man, riding on horseback through rose fields in Turkey, would see women gathering roses to make attar of roses, suddenly stop and cover their faces with a skirt, the only garment they wore. Modesty changes, like other fashions. The Tartar keeps his mouth covered "out of respect to others."
